VOL. XVII. NO. 169. TOLEDO, OHIO, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1892. LAST EDITION. TWO CENTS.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

Forecast for Ohio—Fair; preceded today by snow flurries at lake stations; colder Wednesday morning; westerly winds.

For Indiana—Fair; colder to-night; warmer Wednesday; westerly winds, becoming variable.

For Michigan—Fair; preceded by snow flurries to-day; cooler Wednesday morning, followed by rising temperature; westerly winds, becoming variable.

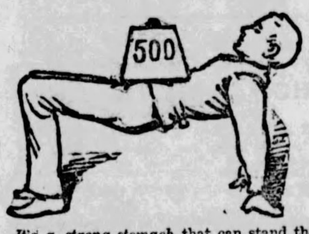
FOSTORIA NOTES.

Fostoria, O., Nov. 8.—Mrs. Cordelia, the estimable wife of Daniel Weaver, died at her home on North Union street this morning at 2 o'clock, aged 58 years. The deceased has been an invalid for the past three years. The funeral will occur Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Frank Barry, an employe of the Calcine glass factory, died at the home of his parents last evening of Bright's disease, aged 20 years. The funeral will take place from St. Wendelin's church Tuesday.

STRIKE OVER.

New York, Nov. 8.—The wiremen's strike is practically over, work having been resumed on all the buildings affected. New men have replaced the strikers, most of whom, however, having secured work. Only a few idle men were at the strike headquarters to-day.



It's a strong stomach that can stand the ordinary pills, with their griping and violence. What kind of a man or woman can it be who buys them?

It's some one who doesn't know about Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets—that's certain. They're better—they're the best, in every trouble of the liver, stomach, and bowels. They do more good, do it easily and naturally, and do it so that it lasts—cleansing and regulating the whole system. Sick and Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, Dizziness, are surely prevented, quickly relieved, and permanently cured.

They're the cheapest pill you can buy, too, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction.

FOLDING BEDS

You Can Do Almost Anything

With our Goshen folding bed. There used to be an idea that two into one wouldn't go; this bed upsets the notion completely. It doesn't, like the chameleon, change its color, but it does change its character, and it is as handsome as a bed at night as it is as a book-case in the day-time. It is one of the happiest combinations of modern ingenuity, and in an instant it turns your sleeping apartment into a handsomely appointed library. Perhaps you have an idea that this double advantage carries with it a double cost. It does not. Call and see it and learn the price.

THE VOTES ARE OUT TO-DAY!

Button Up Your Overcoat, and Button It Up Tight,

For the Chilling Winds, and, Maybe Snow, Will Lurk Around To-Night.

They'll Tangle Up the Whiskers of the Man Upon the Moon,

And They'll Put You in Shape to Hear the News To-Morrow Noon.

To Join Us At Our Front Door, and Hear the News To-Night.

Both Parties Claim a Victory, But How Can That Be True; There Never Was a Time As Yet When One From One Made Two.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—The political feeling in Washington to-day is one of conjecture, prediction and anticipation. No city in the country takes so deep an interest in politics, no city's citizenship is so deeply concerned in a personal way, and yet there is less actual news here than anywhere else. A large element of the population has left for home to cast its vote, and those remaining behind are inquirers after information rather than disseminators of anything worth knowing.

Even at democratic and republican headquarters, respectively, the managers have their eyes on the country, and are awaiting results. It would be easy to get yards and yards of forecasts from them, to be sure, but they would be professional forecasts necessarily and of bias cut.

At democratic headquarters the men in charge share the confidence of their party throughout the union, and the congressional committee predicts a clear majority in the house over all opposition of from 20 to 25.

The persidential race has to a degree overshadowed another question of scarcely less importance. On the complexion of the next senate depends President Cleveland's ability, with the aid of a democratic house, to bring about those reforms that the country will demand next Tuesday. A republican senate will retard all reform measures. It would be labor thrown away to coalesce the somewhat divergent views of individual democrats of the house into an acceptable bill, only to have it killed by representatives of plutocracy who sit in the other body. Your correspondent has from time to time during the campaign talked to senators and other public men on this subject, and his report given here on the eve of the election may be said to be cumulative. It is not an extravagant assertion to say that the republican hopes at best look only to a majority, and they will be satisfied with it, however small. True, some of the most sanguine among them talk wildly about increasing their present lead of eight, but they really fear that they will see the landslide of 1890 repeated. In order to increase their lead they must carry New Jersey, West Virginia, which has been redistricted and is safely democratic, or Delaware and lose nothing. That their dreams are ephemeral must be obvious to any student of politics.

On the other hand, conservative democrats, sensible democrats, are making no wild prophecies of storming the senatorial citadel and taking it at the first onslaught. They hope, and with reason, to see the republican majority changed into a minority, and they will be satisfied with a margin so narrow that its potency will lie in the deciding voice of the vice-president when the ballot is a tie.

The senate as at present constituted contains 47 republicans, 39 democrats and 2 independents. One of those independents is Senator Peffer, a pretty good republican, and the other (Senator Kyle) is not a bad sort of democrat. The body, then, may be said to stand 40 to 48. It will take the loss of five republican senators to change its complexion—the loss of four to tie it.

Where will we turn and look for these changes?

From a fairly extensive acquaintance with leaders in the Empire state, and an observation of the trend of events there during the past two years, your correspondent feels warranted in assuring Republic readers that, whatever the result may be elsewhere, Senator Hiscock's successor in New York will be a democrat. There is nothing more certain in politics than the assembling of a democratic legislature in Albany next winter. The matter was arranged for last winter, and the highest court in the state has indorsed the arrangement. This is not a personal opinion. It is based on facts gleaned from leaders who are in a position to know. The average New York democrat would as soon think of a republican being sent to thesenate from that state next year as a good Missourian would look for the retirement of Francis Marion Cockrell. But no sooner.

There need be no uneasiness about New York, but it stands out solitary and alone in the list of cocksure states now represented by republicans whose terms will expire on March 4. In all the others the enemy has a fighting chance.

Montana ought to elect a democrat to succeed Wilbur F. Sanders, if for no other reason than to rebuke the shameful theft of the state's senatorial representatiton when Sanders entered the body, but the vote there will be close. It is considered good fighting ground by the democratic committee, and an heroic effort will be made to redeem it. Strangely enough, however, politicians here, especially those in official life, bank more strongly on that former Gibraltar of republicanism, Nebraska, than they do on Montana, or indeed, on any of the new states.

The seat of Senator Paddock, who is something of a tariff reformer himself, but otherwise a partisan republican, is in danger, and he knows it. Paddock is well liked here in Washington, and as between him and most any other republican he would be welcomed by all classes, but the tidings o this defeat will be gratefully received and thankfully accepted. Your correspondent conversed yesterday with a Nebraska republican who has recently left the state. He said frankly that he expected to see the opposition control the legislature. The congressional committee has strong hope of turning down Senator Paddock, but hardly look to see him succeeded by a democrat. They will be satisfied with a third party man of low tariff ideas.

It is almost impossible here to get ac or Wisconsin. Newspaper reports are as divergent as are the views of the numerduring the campaign. The congressional committee does not pretend to know a good deal about the situation out there. Individual members of the democratic party talk boastfully, but so do republicans, and so this feature is a stand-off. Your correspondent was shown a carefully compiled statement from Minnesota to-day, which he read, re-read and laid down as much in the dark as ever. The truth is, the Alliance vote in the northwest is an unknown quantity, and it promises to play the mischief with all calculations. There is in Minnesota, as in the two Dakotas, a strong feeling against the wheat ring, and this feeling will cause the defection of many republican votes, but they will be divided between the two other parties, and it is hard to predict which of them will get the biggest end of the divide. The Republic correspondent has strong hopes of the election of an anti-republican to succeed Mr. Davis. It is a case of putting this and that together. The committee here, from information at hand, does not doubt for a minute that four Weaver electors will be returned from Minnesota. If the opposition to republicanism is strong enough to do this, why may it not also get control of the legislature?

Under the new apportionment the democrats of Wisconsin report that they have strong hopes of carrying the state. There will be rejoicing in every section of Washington where Philetus Sawyer is known when the news of his retirement is flashed across the wires.

There is a well-defined hope here, based on the very latest information, that Michigan will elect a democratic legislature. The margin is small in that state, and the campaign of education has been carried on vigorously ever since the accession of the democrats to power two years ago. It is believed by those who study practical politics as a science that the very fact that a part of the state's electoral vote will go to Cleveland in any event will be worth 4,000 or 5,000 votes to the democracy. Nothing succeeds like success, neither is anything else so influential. In fact, it may be said, concerning this state, that Michigan is counted by the committee as in the democratic column.

Then there is Nevada. Whatever the outcome of the contest for elector votes Stewart (ostensibly a republican) will in all probability succeed himself. This can but redound to the benefit of the democrats, for he can never again hope to receive the right hand of full fellowship from the republicans.

California May Shelve Felton.

The factional fight in California is not very well understood here. It is only known that Senator Felton himself has written, or is reported to have written, to a friend here that it might result in the election of a democratic legislature. Felton is a good fellow, and would certainly be preferable to any other republican from the Golden state.

No man can predict with any degree of accuracy the outcome in the Dakotas and Wyoming. It all depends on the figure cut by the farmers' alliance.

The senatorial campaign excites more interest here than anywhere else, because of the patronage involved. There are private secretaryships, sinecures and soft snaps within the gift of every senator, and every senator, therefore, has his personal satellites. Your correspondent has come to the conclusions indicated in the foregoing after hearing the subject discussed pro and con every day for a month. It will be seen from the deductions drawn that the democrats and alliance men have a good chance to secure the senate, that is to say, the alliance will hold the balance of power, and it is gratifying to know that on the great question of tariff reform it is line with the most progressive element in our party.

Those in a position to know best assert that the alliance men will not hold the balance of power in the house, but that the democrats will have a clear majority over all. To be very frank with our readers, it does not look so surely that way to your correspondent. Of course the committee is in a position to know best, but anxiety sometimes warps the judgment.

Secretary Kerr of the house, who has done perhaps as much or more than any other man to get at the true condition of affairs in the various congressional districts, said to your correspondent a month ago that he was sure of 50 to 60 majority, and within 48 hours he has said he sees no reason to modify his assertion. The point made is that quite as many or more republicans will be displaced by alliance men than democrats, but the fact seems to be overlooked that several congressmen were lost to the democrats by the Ohio gerrymander, and that the republicans have a decided advantage for increase allowed by the census of 1890.

The most extravagant allowance that I have yet seen made for the alliance is 30, all told. To make up this total the statistician gave the third party 2 votes in Virginia, 2 in Texas, 1 in Tennessee, 1 in South Carolina, 3 in North Carolina, 2 in Missouri, 1 in Mississippi, 1 in Minnesota, 1 in Louisiana, 2 in Kentucky, 2 n Kansas, 2 n Illinois, 1 in Connecticut, 1 in Alabama and 4 in Georgia. He gives the democrats 166 all told, and the republicans 160. It only requires a superficial examination to show that his deductions are absurd, but they are not more absurd than claims made by enthusiastic democratic partisans, who will not consider the possibility of a defeat in the congressional contest. There has been over confidence in the committee rooms, and it should be frowned upon. Democrats should have it impressed upon them that every vote will be essential.

Your correspondent meets Virginia politicians and citizens from the Old Dominion who are not politicians every day, and there is no doubt in his mind that some of the congressional districts down there are in doubt. The recent attempts made by the traders at fusion between the populists and the radicals will benefit the democrats. Virginians of former democratic affiliations will not vote for Harrison electors. This may be set down as an absolute certainty.

Delaware, which is near this district, and from which personal information has been received at this bureau, is not sure for the democrats, but an heroic effort has been made to hold the little state in line. The legislature will undoubtedly be democratic. It is the member of congress who will be lost, if anything is lost.

The committee has information to the effect that a barrel of money is being spent in Mr. Wilson's district in West Virginia to defeat him, and anxiety is felt on his account. On the other hand, the scholarly economist is himself very sanguine of success in spite of his enemies' boodle campaign.

Little is known here of the situation in Alabama; nothing, in fact, that is not better known to the readers of the Republic who have followed its able correspondence from that section. The alliance people claim four of the nine congressmen. They will not get two if the committee's information from that state is not very faulty. One very grateful piece of information comes from Georgia. Your correspondent got it from Secretary Kerr, who vouches for its reliability. It is this: Unless all signs fail the Hon. Tom Watson will need an astrolabe this time next week to tell where he is at.

The states depended on to return alliance members have been enumerated above. With the elimination of Missouri the committee is prepared to meet such a result without surprise, but the number predicted for a state must in many cases be divided by two. In other states the fight will be pretty much such a fight as was carried on two years ago. It will result in a moderate democratic majority over all, or in the alliance holding the balance of power with less than 25 votes.

The writer, speaking from all the light that he has been able to get from association with the most astute politicians in the country, urges the democrats to bring out their full vote. It will be needed. The talk of a landslide in a presidential year is an ephemeral dream. Do not believe in it. The stake of next Tuesday's battle is the survival of the fittest. The man who fails to do his duty because he believes he is not needed will be no less excusable, if less culpable, than the wretch who accepted republican money to go fishing.

THICKEST OF THE FIGHT.

What the People Are Voting for in the States.

New York, Nov. 8.—The election in this state to-day is for the selection of thirty-six presidential electors, 34 members of congress, a judge of the court of appeals, and a legislature that will choose a United States senator to succeed Senator Hiscock. The weather is fine and early dispatches from all parts of the state indicate that a remarkably heavy vote is being polled. At the headquarters of both parties it is stated that the vote cast in the early morning hours has been fully up to their expectations, and republicans and democrats alike express themselves as confident of victory. The republicans expect to come down to Harlem river with some 90,000 plurality for Harrison, and if this estimate is realized they will probably have the state by from fifteen to twenty thousand.

Michigan.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 8.—A governor, state officers, a legislature that will choose a United States senator, twelve members of congress and fourteen presidential electors are to be chosen in this state. The Miner law determines the choice of presidential electors by congressional districts. A good sized vote is being polled all over the state, and the prospects are the democrats will carry the eastern district for elector-at-large, and the First, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth and Tenth districts, thus securing six electors in all, while the republicans will be successful in the Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Ninth, Eeleventh and Twelfth congressional districts, securing eight electors favorable to President Harrison. At republican headquarters it is claimed that Harrison will carry the state by a safe majority. The democrats are certain to get four congressmen, and possibly six.

Illinois.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 8.—Illinois to-day chooses 24 presidential electors. 22 congressmen, a governor to succeed Fifer, and a state legislature. The registration in this city was extraordinarily large, and a correspondingly heavy vote is being polled. Judge Altgeld, the democratic candidate for governor, has made an energetic fight, but the prospects are that Gov. ernor Fifer will be re-elected, and that the state will be found in the Harrison column. The congressional delegation is likely to be changed to a slight extent. Editor Owen Scott, who captured the Fourteenth district republican stronghold two years ago by some 1,200 plurality, is likely to retire to private life, while J. G. Cannon, who, after many years of service in Washington, was beaten by a few hundred majority in the Fifteenth district as a result of a split in the republican camp thereabouts, will probably be restored to his former honor.

Kansas.

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 8.—Fusion will win in this once great stronghold of the republican party. It is calculated that the total vote of the state will reach and possibly exceed a third of a million, and that the fusion ticket will have a majority running anywhere from thirty-five to fifty thousand. This, however, is not conceded by the republicans who have made a fight against great odds, and not only expressed themselves as confident of success by a small majority, but are backing up that opinion with their money. Besides ten presidential electors, eight members of congress and a governor to succeed Humphrey are to be chosen.

Washington.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—On the result of the legislative elections in thirty-one states to-day depend the future prospects of as many members of the United Stewart, Nevada; Tuttle, New Hampshire; publicans and thirteen of democrats. The republican senators whose successors are to be chosen by the legislatures elected today are Felton, California; Hawley, Connecticut; Perkins, Kansas; Hale, Maine; Dawes, Massachusetts; Davis, Minnesota; Sanders, Montana; Paddock, Nebraska; Stweart, Nevada; Tuttle, New Hampshire; Hiscock, New York; Casey, North Dakota; Quay, Pennsylvania; Aldrich, Rhode Island; Pettigrew, South Dakota; Procter, Vermont; Allen, Washington; Sawyer, Wisconsin; Warren, Wyoming; and on the democratic side, Gray, eDlaware; Pasco, Florida; Turpie, Indiana; Gorman, Maryland; Stockbridge, Michigan; George, Mississippi; Cockrell, Missouri; Blodgett, New Jersey; Butler, South Dakota; Bate, Tennessee; Mills, Texas; Daniels, Virginia; and Faulkner, West Virginia.

Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, Nov. 8.—Thirty-two presidential electors, 30 members of congress, a legislature that will chose a successor to Senator Quay, and a judge of the supreme court are to be selected to-day. The indications are that the state will give its usual presidential year majority. The voting this city during the early morning hours was quite brisk, especially in the working class precincts. It is said that as a result of the recent trouble at Homestead many trades' union men are voting the democratic ticket.

AN AVALANCHE.

That Is What the Election Will Show.

New York, Nov. 8.—Bradley B. Smalley of Vermont, a member of the democratic executive committee, had lots of fun last week, his particular joke being that, from all appearances, there will be two presidents of the United States after the 4th of March next. Mr. Smalley reached this conclusion after hearing republican claims and reading the information received by the democratic managers from the different states.

Hugh J. Grant, mayor of New York city, said: "I sincerely believe that New York city and county will give not less than 75,000 majority for Cleveland. It is impossible to figure accurately on election results, but I believe that Cleveland will get more votes in this city than any man who was ever a candidate for office before the people. You must understand that the registration in this city no longer illustrates the political situation. Thousands of business men that I know of myself personally who have heretofore always voted the republican ticket will vote for Cleveland this time. I know of a dozen great importing houses representing perhaps a hundred votes each that were always solidly republican until now that will vote for Cleveland. This but illustrates the conditions of things here and perhaps may explain to you our extreme confidence in the result.

Mr. Gilroy, the democratic candidate for Mayor of this city and the present commissioner of public works and the chief sachem of the Tammany society, had this to say: "Cleveland will meet Harrison at Harlem bridge with more than 90,000 majority. New York state is democratic when its full vote is polled, and we will see to it that every democrat votes this time."

Amos Cummings, the well-known journalist and member of congress, who understands New York politics perhaps as well as any man living, said this: "You may tell your fellows that New York is safe. We ain't going to have any monkeying either by Johnny Davenport or Dave Martin. I know, of course, that Missouri is all right, but I wish you would make it a point to tell our friends in Illinois, Iowa and Indiana that they can absolutely rely on the vote of New York being cast for Cleveland."

I told Mr. Croker early in the day that I wanted him to give me a review of the political situation in the evening. I went down to Tammany hall about 6 o'clock and asked for Tammany's chieftan. He had left the building, but had instructed one of his clerks to hand me the following note, which was evidently written in haste and with a pencil:

Dear Mr. Moore: I haven't anything to add to what I told you last night. I believe that New York state will give 75,000 majority for Cleveland. If our republican friends are seriously figuring on electing Harrison by the vote of New York they will be very badly mistaken. Everything looks well all along the line. Truly yours,

R. CROKER.

Ex-Congressman Vance, of Connecticut, writes this: "Don't take any stock in republican bragging that Connecticut is in doubt. This state is going to vote for Cleveland. The tobacco-growing industry is confined exclusively to two counties in Connecticut, Fairfield and Hartford. I concede that the tobacco growers are in favor of Harrison, but this does not surprise us up here, because we happen to know that the tobacco growers have always been for the republican candidate for president almost without exception. It is my belief that Connecticut will give about 1,500 majority for Cleveland, and it would not surprise me if we controlled the next legislature, because of the desire of the people to get an opportunity to summon a constitutional convention.

Ex-Congressman Carlos French, of Seymour, Conn., who is a member of the democratic national committee and served several years as chairman of the state committee and who may be said to be the lineal descendant of Wm. H. Barnum in the politics of Connecticut, had this to say: "Connecticut is going to vote for Cleveland. The majority may exceed 2,500 and may fall under 1,000, but I am certain that the democrats will have a clear plurality of the voters of the state on their side."

Hon. P. A. Collins telegraphs me from Boston: "We are going to re-elect Russell governor, but don't base any hopes on the electoral vote of this state being cast for Cleveland. We are fighting hard, but the odds are against us."

Sherman Hoar, a democratic member of the house of representatives from Boston, the son of Grant's attorney general and the nephew of the present distinguished republican senator from Massachusetts, said among other things in a note which I received this morning from him: "Russell will be re-elected beyond doubt, and we will run the republicans close on the electoral ticket. Don't bet, however, that Massachusetts will vote for Cleveland, although there is a chance of its disappointing many of us by doing so."

FINDLAY.

The Biggest Vote Ever Polled in Hancock County.

Findlay, Nov. 8.—The election in this city to-day passed off very quietly for a presidential fight. Both the parties made a great effort to get out every vote. The largest vote ever polled in the city will be the result. Both central committees are extremely confident and claim everything in sight. The county is now very close, about 250 republican. The democrats are making a noble effort to overcome this slight majority and swing old Hancock back into the democratic column, where it has been in the past for many years.

Hon. Fremont Asfords, the democratic candidate for congress in this, the Eighth district, against Col. Strong, of Kenton, will even surprise his most sanguine friends by the way he will run ahead of his ticket. If the other counties in the district would do as well, he certainly would overcome the large majority in Strong's favor. On account of the length of the ticket the returns will be slow coming in to-night.

NEW YORK STATE.

The Early Hours Passed Off Very Quietly.

New York, Nov. 8.—Arrests for illegal registration were not so numerous in the early morning hours as had been expected.

To dispose of such cases three United States commissioners were in continuous session from 9 o'clock—Messrs. Shields and Deuel in the federal building, and Spooner at 155 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth stree, Harlem.

Arrangements had been made by Tammany hall for the release on bail of any of their voters who might fall into the official clutches of a deputy United States marshal, and the organization had several lawyers before each commissioner to see that the prisoners were properly treated.

Bail to the amount of nearly $3,000,000 was arranged for yesterday, sureties having qualified before the commissioners in that sum.

There was no attempt to have a formal examination in any case. The prisoners made a statement and were then subjected to a questioning by an assistant district attorney and a Tammany lawyer, and upon the facts as they were disclosed the court acted.

A number of arrangements were based upon evident misunderstandings and the prisoners were at once discharged. In other cases they were held for future examination under bail of $1,000 or $1,500.

Most of the morning arrests were by warrants previously issued, mainly upon Chief Inspector Davenport's affidavit. In a number of instances the attorneys for the prisoners, after the latter had been released on bail, would ask the commissioner:

"Can this man vote?" to which the invariable response was, "That is a question for the inspectors to decide."

The cases of the city hospital attaches, "who work for board and lodging," and were recently placed on the pay roll, were set for hearing at 10 o'clock next Tuesday morning.

One arrest that created some amusement and not a little amazement occurred in the Twenty-fourth precinct. A deputy marshal brought in a blind Pole whom he had arrested because he could not see the ballot offered him.

The commissioners at once ordered the discharge of the prisoner.

Fifty of the warrants issued yesterday were executed at the polls before 9 o'clock this morning. Several were held for trial and the others were discharged.

Up to 10 o'clock 25 arrests were reported.

THE WEATHER.

Bulletins From the Various States of the Union.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 8.—The weather is cold and cloudy, with a strong northwesterly wind blowing.

Detroit, Nov. 8.—The weather here is cold and cloudy, threatening snow.

Zanesville, O., Nov. 8.—The weather this morning is clear and cool after a heavy frost last night.

Columbus, O., Nov. 8.—Weather clear and cool.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 8.—Election day opened clear and cool. A very large vote is being cast and voting is quiet at polls.

Mansfield, O., Nov. 8.—Weather cloudy and cool, wind southerly.

Cincinnati, Nov. 8.—Weather clear and cold. An unusually large vote is expected to be cast to-day.

Duluth, Minn., Nov. 8.—The weather to-day is very bright and the indications are that a large republican vote will be polled.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 8.—Weather cloudy, threatening snow; cold.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 8.—Weather quite cold; snowing a little, with about 2 1-2 inches on ground.

Erie, Pa., Nov. 8.—Weather cold and cloudy.

Baltimore, Nov. 8.—Weather clear and warm.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 8.—Weather clear and cool.

Camden, N. J., Nov. 8.—Weather clear and pleasant.

Covington, Ky., Nov. 8.—Weather clear and cold.

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 8.—Weather clear and warm.

Philadelphia, Nov. 8.—Weather clear and pleasant.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 8.—The weather here and throughout the state is clear and cold.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 8.—Weather clear and cold.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 8.—Cool and clear.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Weather clear and cool.

Boston, Nov. 8.—Weather clear and warm. Attendance at polling places this morning was large and indications are for a large vote.

ST. LOUIS.

The Laboringman Cast His Vote Early.

St. Louis, Nov. 8.—The "early" or laborer's vote this morning was larger than in any previous election and notwithstanding the fact that the Australian ballot system hampered the average voter, the tickets were deposited from each booth at the rate of three per minute.

The national ticket is receiving its partisan vote, but there is some scratching on the state ticket.

The American Protective association is making a fight against J. B. O'Meara, democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, on religious grounds, and as their vote is an unknown quantity, the effect will not be known until later. The city ticket is generally being voted straight, with the exception of circuit attorney—Charles J. Johnson, populist and independent nominee, receiving considerable support from both old parties.

At 11 o'clock the election was proceeding quietly and outside of a few scrimmages no disturbance is reported. The weather continues clear and cool.

GOVERNOR FLOWER.

He Feels Confident About New York State.

New York, Nov. 8.—Gov. Flower came down from Albany on Saturday for the purpose of voting here to-day. A reporter called on him at the Windsor hotel and asked him what the result would be.

"I don't feel confident to express a judgment on any state except this state," said he. "I am still confident that Mr. Cleveland's plurality in this state will be 50,000. I subtract from that plurality any difference between the democratic plurality in New York and Kings than less 100,000. I am depending on the estimates of the leaders down here that New York city will have 75,000 and Kings and the other lower counties 25,000 plurality for Cleveland. I know little of the feeling in these cities, but I do know a good deal about the up-country districts. The republicans will have 60,000 or 65,000 plurality in the country, not more. I say this because I don't like to think that any citizen of New York would sell his vote."

"By what majority do you think the democrats will have in the legislature?"

"Six or seven majority on joint ballot—a good working majority," he replied.

Governor Flower spoke most warmly of Senator Hill's work for Mr. Cleveland.

Ponderous Bet.

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 8.—A bet that seems from the fact that it is wagered so far away from the seat of war, was made here yesterday. Captain Winslow, a wealthy ranchman, bet Percy Moran, banker, $25,000 to $20,000 that Grover Cleveland will carry New York.

Coming In Early.

St. Louis, Nov. 8.—The sun's rays this morning quickly drove away the light frost that formed during the night, and at 9 o'clock the weather is clear and pleasant. Reports from cities and towns throughout the state report that the weather is clear and crisp. In the city the clear weather had the effect of bringing out an early vote and at 9 o'clock considerable of a vote was polled.

Five Tickets.

Philadelphia, Nov. 3.—There will be five sets of presidential electors voted for in Pennsylvania, nominated by the republican, democratic, prohibition, people's and socialist-labor parties. Pennsylvania will also elect a judge of the supreme court, two congressmen-at-large and a congressman from each of the 28 districts of the state. In addition, a full house of representatives of 204 members and a state senator from the odd-numbered senatorial districts, 25 in all, will be chosen. The candidates on the state tickets are as follows:

Judge of the supreme court, republican, John Dean, Hollidaysburg.

Democrat, Christopher Heydrick, Franklin.

Prohibition, Amos Briggs, Philadelphia.

People's, R. B. McCombs, New Castle.

Socialist-labor, N. L. Criest, Pittsburg.

Congressmen-at-large:

Republican—Wm. Lilly, Mauk Chunk; Alexander McDowell, Sharon.

Democratic—George A. Allen, Erie; Thomas P. Merritt, Reading.

Prohibition—Imeon B. Chase, Easton; James T. McCrory, Pittsburg.

People's—S. P. Chase, Brookfield; G. W. Dawson, Beaver.

Socialist-labor—J. Mahlon Barnes, Philadelphia; Thomas Grundy, Pittsburg.

CLEVELAND.

Everything Quiet and a Large Vote Out.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 8.—This is one of the most quiet presidential elections Cleveland has ever experienced. The voters are putting their ballots in straight and saying little. At 11 o'clock over half the entire vote of the city had been polled. The indications are that White and Hodge, republican candidates for congress, will be elected, while the county will give its usual majority for the republican presidential candidate. The weather is crisp. Not a disturbance of any kind had been reported up to noon.

DEFIANCE.

A Large Vote Is Being Poled Up the Road.

Defiance, O., Nov. 8.—Defiance county is in line. Indications at 11 a. m. show a decided gain for the ticket, both national and local.

The probabilities are that Donovan, Beer and Day will run ahead of the ticket. Col. Taylor is all right.

Both, for sheriff, may run a little behind, but will be elected.

Republicans are not in it.

TAMMANY HALL.

It Is Doing Noble Service for Cleveland

New York, Nov.

A LARGE LOBBY,

Proceedings of the City Council Last Night.

Wrangle Over the Paving of Bartlett Street.

Sale of Bonds to the Highest Bidders.

Not Enough Members Present to Pass Ordinances.

Allowance of Claims Against the City and Abandonment of Actions Begun—A Very Wordy Night.

There was a large lobby in attendance on the city council last night. It included both factions from Barflett street, with representatives of the Warren-Scharf Asphalt Paving company on the one side and the Toledo Electric Street Railway company on the other. There was a long wait for the members of the ways and means committee, which was busy in the auditor's office considering bids for improvement bonds and listening to sugestions upon a new ordinance in regard to salaries in the fire department.

It was 8:45 when the president of the council rapped for order and all members present answered to their names. There were 12 present. The minutes of the former meeting were approved without reading. Mr. Schmuhl presented a resolution for bids for boring an artesian well on the southwest corner of Monroe and Superior streets, at the market space. It was explained that the well there is no good. The motion was adopted.

The president presented the appointment by the harbor master of E. D. Scrofford as inspector of Cherry street bridge improvement.

As there were not enough present to pass ordinances the resolutions were taken up. First came those from the committee on sidewalks, and it was decided to build walks as detailed in them on Chicago, Canal and Hamilton streets, and on the market space in front of the police station. Two schedules of bills approved by the committee were also passed.

Mr. Schmidt, from the sewer committee, presented a resolution to permit the construction of a 15-inch sewer on Grove street. He stated that the members of the committee had approved it. The council did likewise. It also passed resolutions to construct a sewer on Michigan street, and directing the city engineer to issue a permit to drain a lot in Shaw & Frazier's addition into the sewer in its rear, and two schedules of bills approved by the committee.

Resolutions from the judiciary committee were passed to allow saparate claims of Emily T. Hall, Neil Huston, John T. Coghlin and W. A. & J. J. Leith for rebates on sewer assessments. Mr. Ogden, in explanation, stated that they had been before the committee several times and were allowed on advice of the solicitor, Abatements of improvement tax were allowed from lots in Parks' addition, Fassett's third addition and North Toledo. The solicitor was directed to confess judgment for $300 in the John Nearnoth case for damages by reason of a defective sidewalk, he having stated that he would accept that amount in satisfaction; also for $25 in the Charles Schalow case, pending in the common pleas court, for injury to a horse and buggy. Mr. Schalow had recovered judgment for $40 or $50, but agreed to settle for cost of repairs. The claim of Sam Clark for building sidewalks was allowed. This involved a rebate of assessment on a number of lots owned by the school board. The schedule of bills approved by the judiciary committee was passed.

Reports from the street committee were then taken up. The solicitor stated that he wanted the ordinances to improve Wheeling street and Greenwood avenue referred back. He read communications from the attorneys of owners complaining that Wheeling street grade was not established and Greenwood avenue not dedicated. The matters were referred to the engineer. The ordinance to improve Utica street was also referred back.

Resolutions were approved to improve Fifteenth, Warren and Colburn streets; directing the solicitor to dismiss the case against John T. Newton and others pending in the probate court, and relating to the opening and extension of Forrer street; and directing the street commissioner to take up the old plank road on South street between the canal and Park street and fill in with cinders. The street committee's schedule of bills was also approved.

Mr. Walker, on leave, moved that the city clerk advertise for bids for an artesian well on the northwest corner of Nebraska and Detroit avenues, to be paid for from the general fund. He thought it as well to have a well there as at the market space. Mr. Schmuhl, who had movd for the first one argued that it was different and moved to lay on the table. This was lost and Mr. Walker's motion passed by a vote of 10 to 2, only Messrs. Felker and Schmuhl voting against it.

A resolution to stone Lenk street from the creek to the Clover Leaf railway was passed; the report of receipts by the auditor received; then the business from the engineer was taken up. Permits were issued to drain two different lots in Stickney's addition; the jobs of paving of Maplewood avenue with asphalt and Bancroft street with fire-brick were accepted, as was the final estimate for grading Union street. E. Wiedman, James O'Hara, James O'Brien, John Gorman, P. Moran, B. O'Farrell, Chas. Schulz, M. Madden, B. Mattimore, and C. Bosart were confirmed as sewer inscptors and Enos Cusinean and Thos. Manlon as inspectors of street improvements.

Mr. Osborne asked who paid these inspectors, the property holders or the city, and if it was necessary to have a different inspector for each sewer. He thought the same man could inspect two or three jobs when they were close together.

The engineer explained that the city paid the sewer inspectors. It merely advances on street work, but sewer assessments were made by benefits and the assessment paid to the contractor. The other way would cost more than the inspectors. It would be difficult for one man to inspect several sewers.

The president stated that a few years ago a sewer was built without an inspector, and the contractor filled it in with dirt.

In answer to questions the engineer said the inspectors were paid $2 a day, and that they gave bond.

Andrew Raymond, D. Brown and D. Quinlan were confirmed as assessors for sewer No. 432, and I. C. Wernert, A. Raymond and John Raymond for sewer No. 425.

The report of the waterworks board for October was received.

Mr. Manchester suggested that though there were not members enough present to suspend the rules, the ordinances could be read a first time; but it was not done, and the resolutions from the board of aldermen were taken up. On that to direct the T., St. L. & K. C. Ry. Co. to place a watchman at Tecumseh street, Taylor asked if the council had any such right. The solicitor was not sure if the ordinance giving the right-of-way to this road provided for that. Those of the others did not. The resolution passed.

The following passed with easy acquiescence: Directing the street commissioner to repair pavement on Broadway, between South and Colborne; directing the engineer to survey and stake out the alley between Galena and Van Dalen streets, from Michigan street to the abandoned canal bed; directing the solicitor to notify the W. & L. E. R. R. Co. to repair bridge at Elm street; to accept improvements of Lenk, Albany and St. Louis streets and of alley between St. Clair and Oliver streets, and sewers Nos. 425 and 432; to appoint committees to assess these two sewers, and to grant property owners permission to build sewer on Melrose street to Collingwood avenue.

Then came the fun. No sooner was the resolution read to confirm the contract with the Warren-Scharf company for the paving with asphalt of Bartlett street from Twenty-second street to Lawrence avenue than a motion to table was made.

Mr. Stahl, a resident of the street, was heard. He stated that there was a struggle between the residents and the Robison Street Railway company, which had laid a double track on the street against the wish of the residents, whose right should be respected.

James Robison declared he had a petition in his pocket, inspected by the city engineer, who figured out a majority of the property holders on the street in favor of firebrick. The matter of the Robison road had nothing to do with it. There was a majority of over 300 feet against asphalt. He asked reference to the committee to decide.

Mr. Stahl thought there was on Jim's petition the name of Mr. Fraser, who owned some 500 feet, beside one or two other outside owners of vacant property just above him. A week ago this passed the board of aldermen, and Mr. Fraser, who was asked down, gave him authority to use his name on the petition for asphalt. Mr. Fraser was the only outside party on that petition signed by 3,100 feet. Add the 500 feet, and it would make 3,600 feet out of 5,200. Beside, his was the only legal petition, for the Robison petition was gotten up after the ten days were up.

Jim Robison said Mr. Konitz and other residents petitioned against asphalt and wanted firebrick. All they asked was referred to the committee, to be heard. The matter was never before the committee. They were on hand and the committee never came together. The asphalt men had misrepresented to signers.

David Robison here asked how many feet Mr. Stahl had.

Mr. Stahl declared that cut no figure, whereupon Mr. Robison stated that Mr. Stahl had brought in the street railway. The Robisons had built a number of houses on the street, and the railroad had nothing to do with the matter.

Mr. Dale chimed in with the statement that the asphalt men had the signautres for 2,800 feet without agreeing to pay for anybody's pavement.

Jim Robison presumed that referred to Mr. Green, to whom he had said they could afford to pay for the pavement; but he didn't say he would do it.

Mr. Manchester asked if the matter had been before the street committee. It came from the aldermen and he presumed it had been considered by the committee. If the people were willing to pay for asphalt they should have it. (Applause from the public.) If it had not been before the committee, how did it come to the council?

The president stated that the committee had no quorum, but several members had signed it afterwards.

The city solicitor being asked if it was not sufficient to obtain the signatures of a majority of the committee, stated that he had no knowledge as to which petition was legal. The council could pive with any material except when a majority of the property owners petitioned for some particular kind within ten days after the engineer made his estimate of the cost of the different materials. He thought he had made the estimate on the following Wednesday.

Another resident of Bancroft street wanted to know what the asphalt pavement would cost.

On a motion to table, Mr. Taylor referred to the double track on the street, and a claim of misrepresentation in signing the petition. He was tired of people kicking after signing petitions. Bancroft street needed improvement. It could not be driven over last winter, was narrow, and still had a double track. Washington street, paved with firebrick only a few years ago, needed repairing. The street car tracks raised the bricks. There were only nine feet to pave on each side of the tracks on Bancroft street, and that would not be much expense to these people. If they put down brick they would be sorry for it.

After some further discussion as to people on one side of the city bucking against those on the other side, the motion to table was lost. It was then suggested that it was too late in the season to lay asphalt, and Mr. Hoag, representing the Warren-Scharf company, said that depended on the weather. On a division Mr. Miller opposed the motion to approve on the ground that the asphalt company, after it had conquered competition, raised the price from $2.10 to $2.59. He and Lee voted nay, thus leaving only nine years, not enough to confirm.

The contract to pave Dorr street was confirmed, and on motion to reconsider Mr. Taylor asked what grudge the members had against his end of the city. Mr. Walker wanted to reconsider, and Mr. Lee remarked that there was an ordinance for a double track on the street, and as the pavement could not be laid till spring, anyway, it might be gotten cheaper then.

The motion to reconsider was lost, only Messrs. Felker, Lee, Miller and Schmidt voting yea.

Mr. Taylor asked how many members were in the council board now, and was answered "Seventeen." The solicitor stated that ordinances, resolutions and bills required for adoption a majority, but on the occasion of a single vacancy, and such vacancy not being filled by neglect, it required a majority of the full board. As there was no neglect he considered that it required 10 votes to confirm a contract.

Mr. Manchester spoke of a resolution against the backing of drays, which he had brought in, and which was referred to the ordinance committee. He wanted to know if that meant burying it. He was not answered.

Mr. Osborne presented the report of the committee of ways and means. It gave the sale of $25,000 of general improvement bonds to Sensongood & Mayer, of Cincinnati, for par, accrued interest and a premium of $531.75; of $7,870.37 of Lagrange street bonds to Spitzer & Co. for par, interest and $450 premium; of $903.26 of —— alley bonds to K. Mathes for par, interest and $4.50 premium; of $796.05 of Ostrich Lane bonds for par, interest and $4.50 premium; of $5,939.57 of Lawrence avenue bonds to the Merchants & Clerks' Savings bank for par, interest and $10 premium; and of $7,436.05 of Lafayette street bonds for par, interest and $15 premium. The report also told that the auditor was instructed to prepare a new ordinance relating to salaries of the fire department.

Contracts with Mark B. O'Sullivan and Peter Crilly were confirmed for walks on Tracy, Canal, McGouldric, Champlain, Buckeye, Ontario, Oak, Pontiac, Bartlett, Hicks, Rex, Woodville, Chestnut, Platt, and Hawley streets, Oliver place, Brown road, and New York avenue; also contracts for sewers with George H. Bodette, Neil Huston, Andrew Major, F. E. Cole, and W. T. Ryan.

The bond of John P. Kocker as sewer builder was approved.

On the resolution from the aldermen to reject all bids for Fulton street paving and to readvertise, Mr. Manchester asked why. Mr. Osborne answered that the residents said they didn't want it paved. Mr. Lee declared it was because the right parties didn't get the contract. The resolution was lost on devision.

It was noticed that Mr. Neuendorf was gone and on motion of Mr. Taylor the council took a recess till Thursday evening.

DEAR WOMAN.

When by your fireside sitting
With slippered feet at night,
And not one shadow flitting
Across your drowsy sight;
Oh, is it not a startling thing
To have your wife appear,
Exclaiming, as she cuts the string
"'Twas such a bargain, dear."

When, in the morning, rising,
Your mind on business bent,
With thoughts on advertising
And payment of the rent;
What feelings in your bosom well,
When from your wife you hear,
"Do let me buy it. It's so swell,
And such a bargain, dear."

When to some distant city
You are obliged to roam,
As you peruse this ditty
Away from friends and home,
A letter from your wife is brought
The meaning of it's clear;
She wants a check for things she's bought
"As such a bargain, dear."

Let no rash youth who's shaping
His future by a kiss,
Think he will be escaping
Just such a fate as this.
The girl, no matter what her name
Is Eve again, we fear;
We love them; but they're all the same—
As bargains they are dear.

BATCHELLER GIVES IT UP

A Minister to Portugal Thinks Cleveland Will Win.

He Was Called Home to Stump New York State.

Now He Sails Back on La Gascogne Disgusted With His Party's Chances—Farmers Are Not Satisfied.

New York, Nov. 8.—Gen. George S. Batcheller, accompanied by his wife and daughter, sailed for Paris on La Gascogne yesterday. Soon after the inauguration of President Harrison the general was appointed first assistant secretary of the treasury. Two years ago he was sent to Portugal as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary. Recently he resigned this mission to take effect November 15, after which date he will represent life insurance companies as counsel at the French capital.

Gen. Batcheller was one of the foreign ambassadors summoned home by the president to help save him from defeat. The general has been stumping this state and has departed in very serious doubt as to Harrison's ability to capture New York's electoral vote. In fact, he confessed that unless a radical change in the sentiment of the voters takes place before election day Harrisin will be swamped in a state which four years ago he carried by over 14,000 plurality.

"I am hoping for the best," said Gen. Batcheller to a friend, "but I cannot see how it will be possible to overcome the nearly 50,000 majority secured by Roswell P. Flower only a year ago. At least 25,000 votes will have to be changed. Our losses in 1891 were not in New York and Brooklyn. We did splendidly there. We were beaten by the failure of the voters in the agricultural districts to go to the polls, even after they had registered. Some were kept away by democratic money. Others were ignorant as to how to cast their ballots under the new-fangled law. They were afraid to expose their ignorance. Still others thought Platt would dominate the state if Fassett were elected. At any rate they didn't vote, and instead of 90,000 plurality above the Harlem, which we expected, we had to be contented with a little over 50,000.

"I have never seen a more apathetic campaign than this during my experience of over thirty years in politics. The meetings up the state which I have addressed have been but fairly well attended. The farmers, who were with us to a man up to last year, did not turn out as they did in 1888. Though the McKinley tariff law provided wholesale protection for agricultural products, the farmers complain that they have no better market for their goods than they had before the law went into effect. They were promised $1.20 a bushel for their wheat. They find it difficult to get 75 cents. They have been able to secure no more for their eggs, butter and cheese than before. Though the McKinley law sought to prohibit the importation of Canadian barley, so as to encourage American production, the barley-raisers this side the border say they have as yet discovered no benefit in this respect. The Oswego malsters, for instance, buy Canadian barley in preference to American, high though the price has been fixed, because of the prohibitory tariff.

"I fear we shall have less votes in the northern tier than we had in 1888. I look for a decrease in my own county of Saratoga. We have been unable to convince the farmer that he is better off under the McKinley law than without it. His small sales and small profits wield greater influence with him than any appeals or arguments we could advance. What is true of Saratoga is also true of other agricultural counties I have visited.

"Many farmers, too, are scared by the force bill spectre. They are beginning to believe the democratic falsehoods that the republican party intends to man the polls with troops and bayonets or shoot down any one who votes the democratic ticket. The farmer loves peace. He detests war. Therefore the simple minded ones regard the force bill as a threat to their peace and prosperity. There are weak spots all over the state and, while I am hopeful, still I must confess that Harrison is not as strong as here as in 1888, while Cleveland seems to have increased rather than diminished his popularity.

"Much as I detest Tammany hall and its methods, I cannot but wish that we had a superbly equipped state and city organization such as it is. If any one is banking on Tammany treachery he is very foolish. I know the republican national and state committees are both working on the theory that Croker and his lieutenants will be true to Cleveland, however much they have been disappointed by his nomination, and Senator Hill's taking the stump and his public declarations since the Chicago convention will wheel his friends into line on election day. We have arrayed against us a united democratic party, led by bosses of remarkable ability and astuteness.

"A democrat will vote for the devil if he is the party candidate. A republican will either vote against a candidate who does not suit him or remain away from the polls. You will readily observe why I am not at all sanguine about my own state. I am sorry I cannot remain here and lessen the democratic majority, if there is to be one, by at least a vote. My business engagements, however, necessitate my presence in Paris next week. I trust I shall hear that Indiana, Connecticut and other doubtful states have wheeled into the republican column. On this alone, it seems to me, will depend the re-election of the best president we ever had—Benjamin Harrison."

DOWN IN THE MARSH.

Men You Meet When You Take the Gun and Rod.

Many Toledo people do not appreciate the beautiful hunting and fishing ground that is placed at their very door. If there were no such conditions surrounding this city, Toledo people would travel miles for their game and fish. But there are many who know how to enjoy themselves and who put many spare days in the beautiful marshes of the Maumee.

The Seventh ward is the banner ward for rod and gun clubs, and the Hirsig Gun club ranks among the best in this part of the state.

C. C. Hirsig, whose cut appears in this sketch, is president of the club. He is a true sport with the gun and can put up a pot of bull on fit for the kings. Brief sketches will follow in this department from time to time of the men you meet in the marshes, and they will prove interesting reading.

GILL FOUND GUILTY.

The Jury Takes Three Hours to Decide.

Attorneys for the Defense Evidently Give the Twelve Some Thoughts to Consider.

William J. Gill is found guilty.

The jury empanelled and sworn to well and truly try, declare that the accused was guilty of soliciting a bribe to influence his official vote as charged in the indictment.

When the Bee went to press yesterday Attorney Tracy had just concluded perhaps one of the strongest speeches of his life, and the court was delivering the charge to the jury. The charge was considered fair and impartial and it must have been, as neither side filed a request to charge or noted an exception.

The jury retired at exactly 3.15, and returned at 6:10, being just two hours and fifty-five minutes arriving at the verdict of guilty.

Attorneys Judge Ritchie and Frank E. Wright made a gallant fight to clear their client and their arguments gave the jury something to think about and discuss.

The prosecution was fairly and honestly conducted.

Robert Downing in Othello and the Gladiator—A Big Show at the People's—The Wonderland.

Following is the excellent program at the People's this week:

Lavencher & Tomison in their original travesty entitled Buttons. They are very clever.

Maude Beverly, character vocalist.

Swift & Chase, musical artists.

Prince Satsuma, Japanese juggler.

Mr. John E. Drew, comedian, vocalist and dancer.

Dixon & Lang, character artists.

McAvoy & May, and eccentric duo.

Emerson & Cook, black face comedians.

Patterson brothers, gymnasts.

The shaw closes with a laughable comedy, A Hot Pickle. The program is long and excellent throughout. Packed houses will be the order of the week.

The Star Course Concert.

The Star Course opened last evening with the Ovid Musin Grand Concert company. It was a success and argues well for the standard of the course. Ovide Musin is a master of the violin. It might be stated that he brought out the full power of the instrument, that his playing was the treat of a lifetime, but it would be useless, for the musical public know the artist's reputation well. One of the features of his playing last evening was the rendition of a caprice on Scotch airs composed by Musin and played here for the first time in any concert.

Anna Louis Tanner sang with brilliant effect seven pieces of a widely different character. Edward Scharf the pianist was obliged to respond to encores to both of his numbers.

Inez Parmater had two numbers on the program "From Out Thine Eyes" and "O, Promise Me." In response to encores she gave a charming song called "The Two Marronettes" and "Orange Blossoms." The convert was most enjoyable.

The next event in the course will be the Schubert Mull Quartet, December 7.

Robert Downing.

America's tragedian, Robert Downing, who comes to the Wheeler opera house next Thursday and Friday, has been meeting with wonderous success throughout the country for the past nve seasons, and is now recognized as one of the formost of American tragedians. Mr. Downing's repertoire this season comprises, "The Gladiator," "Damon and Pythias," "Julius given here in their entirety and with Caesar," Ingomar," "Virgiulius," and two new plays, "The Huron," a comedy drama, and "Richard, The Lion Heart." For Mr. Downing's appearance in our city, Manager Brady has selected "Othello" and "The Gladiator," which will be given in their entirety and with every attention as regards stage setting, and with the entire company in the cast he same as presented during Mr. Downing's successful engagement in New York and Boston.

The Wonderland.

The performance at the Wonderland this week is as good as it is varied. There is Hop O' My Thumb, a twenty-year old sprite from Novia Scotia, who weighs only S 3-4 pounds, also Electia, the electric woman, Austen, the modern Hercules, and the Family Dann in the curio hall. In the theater are to be found the Pugal Brothers with their wrestling bears, Frank Emerson, base soloist, the Whitings, sckecth artists, Grace Milburn a charming vocalist, the O'Brien sisters, knife throwers and jugglers, and J. C. Medway, a very clever athlete who does some great jumping. The performance is well worth seeing.

HISTORY FAVORS CLEVELAND

If history repeats itself (and this it is likely to do if the money of the plutocrats does not upset all precedents) Grover Cleveland will be the next occupant of the White House.

Democrats like to refer to the memorable administration of Gen. Andrew Jackson.

On his military glory this veteran democrat was elected president in the year 1828. Just 40 years later (1868) Gen. U. S. Grant was elected on his military glory. Four years after each date each was re-elected as a further recognition of military renown. In 1836, four years later, a democrat, Martin Van Buren, was elected, and 40 years from that date (1876) a democrat, Samuel J. Tilden, was likewise elected.

In 1840, four years after the election of Mr. Van Buren, Wm. H. Harrison, a republican, was elected and 40 years from that date, 1880, James A. Garfield, a republican, was elected. In 1844 a democrat, James K. Polk, was elected and 40 years from that date, 1884, a democrat, Grover Cleveland, was likewise elected. In 1848 Zach Taylor, a republican, was elected, and just 40 years thereafter, 1888, Benjamin Harrison, a republican, was likewise elected. In 1852 Franklin Pierce, a democrat, was elected, and 40 years thereafter (1892), if the rule holds good, a democrat, Grover Cleveland, must likewise be elected. Applying history to prophecy, in 1856 a democrat, James Buchanan, was elected, and 40 years thereafter, 1896, a democrat should likewise be elected.

In 1860 there came a catastrophe in politics, parties divided and the country was plunged into internecine war. Forty years thereafter, 1900, it is more than probable that there will be another disorganization of the old parties. Both may be defeated, and on their ruins may be erected a new institution which will wrest from the plutocrats their slaves, the masses who toil, as did the success of abolitionism in 1860 wrest from the southerners their slaves so long held in bondage.

The year 1900 is also the one hundredth anniversary of the election of Thomas Jefferson, the father of democracy, who wrested the country from federalism and plutocracy. Even democracy of to-day is more plutocratic in some respects than was the federalism of our grandfathers, hence it is by no means improbable that the year 1900 will be full of interest in bringing to the front reforms and alterations, more significant and necessary than were the democratic conditions as instituted by Jefferson.

All so-called conservative citizens predicted in 1800 that the success of Jefferson and the inauguration of his principles would result in the death knell of the republic, a reign of temporary disorder, to be supplanted in the end by a monarchy or empire.

Neither of these prophesies were fulfilled and democracy ruled the nation for many successive years. Questions of too great moment are now confronting the people for party lines to be divided on such comparatively insignificant questions as protection with a big P—the republican position, and protection with a little p—the democratic position. To continue thus would be contrary alike both to precedent and reason. Look to the year 1900! Though the moon shall not be darkened and the sun shall not cease to give his light, nor shall the stars be forced from out their spheres, yet in that year much may occur that will illumine the pages of history.

BURNED OUT MEN MAY VOTE.

Voters burned out by the recent fire in Englewood were replaced on the registry lists by the election commissioners yesterday. Nearly 25 voters lived in the buildings destroyed by the fire of October 19. Some had registered and others went to the polls October 25. When the canvassers made their rounds they failed to find the men and suspect notices were sent. The commissioners decided to reinstate them. "It may not be according to the letter of the law," said Commissioner Hutchings, "but it is only fair to allow them to vote. There is no reason why, because the fire deprived them of their property, we should deprive them of their vote." Commissioner English thought the law would not allow an involuntary removal to disqualify a voter.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE.

'Tis midnight past and still I sit
Beside the fire dreaming
While on the bed my wedding gown
Reposes white and gleaming;
A satin splendor made by Worth,
And rich with silver beauty,
Papa's last tribute to the shrine
Of his parental duty.

For on the morrow, at St. Mark's,
Amid a loud fanfaron
Of trumpets, clarions and shawms,
I marry Meinherr Baron,
Who owns a ruin on the Rhine—
Is cousin to the Kaiser,
And deep in debt—for details see
The Morning Advertiser.

He wears a ring upon his thumb,
His voice is loud and beery,
For herring soup and sauerkraut
His appetite is eerie.
He's very fat, a little bald,
And crooked-legged like Scarron,
So any one can see he is
A bona-fide baron.

O Fate! I thank thee for this boon!
My spinsterhood is ended,
And not a girl of all the town
Has made a match so splendid.
For me alone it is reserved
To know what earthly bliss is,
For I shall be a baroness,
And they but simple Mrs.

HEART FAILURE.

The Warnings Are Plain—Beware.

The Boston Record, speaking of the death from heat failure of Senator Plumb, Senator Zach Chandler, Congressman Secretary Windom and scores of other prominent men who have died from the same trouble, asks: "What is this heart failure? Is there any escape from it, or is it the inevitable result of the dangerously high tension under which so many of us are living?"

No hour passes that some one does not drop dead of heart failure. The Record has struck the key-note of the cause, but there is a remedy. The first symptoms of this fatal disease may be slight, but do not fail to heed them if you value your life.

A nervous, weak, weary feeling, giddiness, swimming of head, strange, faint feelings, trembling, sinking sensation, coldness of feet and legs, fluttering or palpitation of heart, feeling of apprehension, anxiety, drowsiness daytimes, sleeplessness nights.

Neglect of these symptoms will result in heart failure, spasms or neuralgia of the heart, or death.

The grip, owing to its weakening effect upon the nerves, has left thousands upon thousands of weak hearts in its train.

If you use the great nerve and heart remedy, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, when the first symptoms appear, it will prevent all danger of heart failure. It is purely vegetable and harmless, and its use offers the only sure hope of curing this terrible disease and averting the fatal result. Druggists sell it for $1.00.

"I was troubled with heart disease. Some mornings I would be surprised when I awoke and found myself alive, for I expected a sudden death any moment. I bought a bottle of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and must say that it has rapidly brought me to health and strength. I have now taken four bottles and call myself cured, and I must certainly say that it is the most wonderful remedy for the nerves, brain and heart that has ever been discovered.

J. J. COMMERFORD,
131 Main street, Brockton, Mass.

Dr. Greene, the successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, 35 W. 14th street, New York, can be consulted free, personally or by letter. Call or write him about your case, or send for symptom blank to fill out, and a letter fully explaining your disease, giving advice, etc., will be returned free.

Long Distance Telephone Souvenir.

A handsome souvenir is being distributed from the local office of the Long Distance Telephone company, commemorative of the opening of the line between New York, Chicago and Toledo. It is a coil of copper wire the same size used on the line, at each end of which is hung a tiny transmitter or ear piece. The whole is gold plated and very neat in design.

Bad Young People.

Thomas Huston, aged 18, Fred Cooley, aged 16, Louise Casey, aged 19, and Clara Rhodes, aged 14, were arrested at the Empire house early this morning. The charges placed against them were prostitution and suspicion. The suspicion end of the charge meant that the girls had hired out at the hotel in the morning and had robbed the rooms of clothing and money at night. It was a prearranged scheme, but the police captured them before they got away with the plunder.

A Correction.

In last evening's Bee appeared a statement to the effect that Mr. P. T. Germaine was about to remove from this city to Chicago.

Mr. Germaine called to-day to say that this was a mistake. His trip to Chicago was only a pleasure trip, and he will continue to make his home in this city and conduct his business here.

The impression to the contrary was an erroneous one.

Mr. Germain's friends and patrons will be glad to know that he intends to remain in Toledo.

Mrs. Suder's Reception.

Hard would it be to find anything more entertaining, charming or wonderful than the chrysanthemum reception being held at Mrs. Suder's this week. Many, who have visited the exhibits in New York and other large cities say that they have never seen the equal of this exhibition. Every variety, hue and size show the perfectures of nature. The chrysanthemum is considered a rare flower and is at present the fashionable flower of the day. Flowers, of all created things, are the most innocently simple and most superbly complex. Mrs. Suder has extended an invitation to all to visit the bower of beauty while in its prime.

Joe Ken is the name of the ninth Chinaman registered in this internal revenue district under the new law. He is a laundryman at Clyde, 32 years old, 5 feet and 2 1-2 inches high, and a rather good looking fellow, as revealed by his photograph affixed to the duplicate of the registration before given him on affidavit of two persons that he was here when the law was passed. The other eight registered her are from Findlay, Piqua and other towns; but none of the Toledo Chinamen have registered and declare they are not going to. Collector Waldorf says, on the other hand, that they will on May 1, or get out, as their time is up on that date.

Arrangements for the course of lectures to be given by the University Extension institute of Toledo, this winter, have not yet been completed, but it is understood that the first lecture will be delivered on November 18, by Prof. Hazlett, of the Chicago university.

His subject will be "The Literature of the Victorian Period."

IT MAKES COLD CHILLS.

The Decrease of Temperature Is Quite General.

Observer Hanner said to-day: "The cold wave covers the entire country from the Rocky Mountains to Erie, Pa., and as far south as Kentucky. It will extend to the Atlantic coast and to Florida by to-night. The temperature ranged this morning from 10 degrees below zero at Moorehead to freezing weather to the points mentioned south and east. The temperature here this morning was down to 25, a fall of 30 degrees since yesterday. I have every reason to believe the conditions favorable to going to 15 degrees to-morrow morning. After to-morrow it will begin to warm up, very slowly. We have two days of nice weather in sight, sure. Over the New England states and New York the weather is cold, with very light rain, which will probably turn to light snows to-day, and it will grow colder.

POSTAL POINTS.

Changes in This (the Fifth) Division.

STYLISH CLOAKS CAUSE A RUSH.

It is surprising to note the rush of trade at the new Cloak store of Sanborn & Company, 403 Adams street. Mr. Sanborn is the most experienced man in this line in Toledo, having seen the Cloak business of Toledo grow and thrive from a mere nothing to its present proportions. A few months ago, Mr. Sanborn decided to employ his experience as a manufacturer and retailer, and accordingly opened out in his present quarters for himself with the finest, newest and most stylish stocks of Cloaks and Ladies' Wraps ever opened in Toledo.

The ladies of Toledo have shown their appreciation of Mr. Sanborn's efforts to bring new and stylish garments here by a patronage far surpassing even Mr. Sanborn's most sanguine expectations.

Advice to Mothers of Fretful Babies

828 Huron St., Toledo, O., July 17, '92.
Hand Medicine Co., Gentlemen:

My baby is now three months old and has had colic all her life. We gave her all kinds of remedies without any beneficial effect. I was almost discouraged in trying anything else when a friend told me of your Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. I gave her 12 drops which acted like a charm. Now as soon as I discover she has wind colic I give her one or two doses which relieves her entirely. I want to advise all mothers who have fretful babies to use Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. I will hereafter always keep it in the house.

THE BEE'S ELECTION RETURNS

The Bee, always ready to cater to the wants of the people, has perfected arrangements to display the election returns this evening, with the aid of a stereopticon, in front of the office. The news will be received in the building over the Bee's wires, and the information given immediately.

Every Toledoan is interested in the election, and recognizing this fact, all possible diligence will be used to accommodate and give reliable returns.

TO AGENTS.

Interest will center all of this week in the election returns. The Bee has arranged for the fullest details. In order that the demand for papers may be supplied, orders for extra copies should reach the business department early each day.

Agents, send in your orders at once.

Have you voted?

There are yet a couple of hours.

Go and vote for Cleveland and Ritchie.

November 15 closes the fiscal year in Ohio, and then reports of state officials will follow thick and fast.

Barbers are giving their razors an extra honing in anticipation of extra work on long faces to-morrow.

A few more blows like that of last evening, and the jolly mariner will have to join the land lubber's forces.

There is one consolation—the republicans have been unable to figure a majority of the next house house of representatives.

Toledo has enjoyed a substantial building season, and many other splendid improvements are projected for next year.

The way of the transgressor is hard, and the average jury executes the will of the law as lightning does the will of Gd.

There are 2,868 voting precincts in the Buckeye state this year. This note is made for the benefit of the figurers this evening.

Toledo can stand a jubilee over the completion of the new armory building, and arrangements for the same cannot begin too soon.

By the way, where has General Alger been at during the campaign just closed? He has not been heard from since the Minneapolis convention.

The streets will now fill up with mud until spring. Election is over, and Mr. Bower has another little matter of impeachment on hand.

This is the day in the United States when rich and poor stand on equal terms at the ballot box. Wealth does not add to the force of the ballot.

Francis Murphy is holding temperance meetings in Cincinnati. He will undoubtedly have a hard row to hoe in Porkopolis, but Mr. Murphy is a hustler.

Mr. Clark Waggoner, although living in New York, bothered the republican organs somewhat in the past few weeks. Mr. Ashley will remember Mr. Waggoner as long as he lives.

The people of Toledo are invited to take advantage of the Bee's election returns to be displayed to-night in front of the building. Dispatches will be put on the canvas as soon as received.

For a quiet campaign, there has been a surfeit of political music, quite enough to last until next spring; but it is likely that the papers will again begin on the same old strains to-morrow.

Either the democratic or republican national committee is wrong in the making of estimates and drawing of conclusions as to the result of the election. Which is it? For the answer read the Bee.

The Y. M. C. A. Star course opened auspiciously last evening at Wheeler's. Toledoans evidently appreciate the efforts of the organization to furnish clean entertainments, as the great audience testifies.

There will be no lack of places to learn of the election returns this evening, but the Bee has things in shape to give the figures as soon as received over the wire in the office. Watch the canvass for reliable news.

We will all know more about the election in the morning. In the meantime, the Bee still believes Grover Cleveland will be president and Byron Ritchie the Ninth district's congressman. At least, so mote it be.

The press is stopped to announce that Wm. M. Hahn, one of Ohio's big (?) four, by the grace of Gen. Gibson, has expressed himself as confident that Ohio will remain in the republican column. William is great on confidence.

It looks as if Gladstone had a rather rocky road to travel. His Irish majority is somewhat of an uncertain quantity. The conservatives propose making the session a warm one, and the intricacies of the Irish question may give them an opportunity.

Agents should send in their orders for extra papers early in the morning. The press will be kept running until the demand is supplied. News will be printed without regard to party bias. Buy the Bee for all the happenings every day in the week.

Senator Gorman, Senator Brice, Senator Hill, Senator Carlisle and others of like political prominence are sanguine that the democracy will win the fight. The gentlemen will be highly honored if their predictions prove true.

Byron Ritchie, it is proper to remark, made a gallant fight, and, whether elected or defeated, has the knowledge that he kept the republican forces, backed by a majority of nearly 2,000, on the move ever since the Bowling Green convention.

That was a pretty mean thing on the part of the republicans to scatter a circular which had the purpose in view of reflecting on Mr. Ritchie's loyalty to the democratic cause in the past. Even when his father was running for congress he did not waver.

The Cincinnati Enquirer has been outdoing itself the past week in the gathering of election news. Yesterday it had a summary of prognostications from Ohio's 21 districts, which gave a key to the situation, and the head-liner just threw himself. Enterprise is the Enquirer's forte.

The resignation of Mr. W. H. Scott after twenty years of valuable service as a member of the board of library trustees is to be regretted. Mr. Scott has been an ardent advocate and projector of the new library, and has worked hard and honestly to make the institution the pride and profit to Toledo which it is.

No matter how the local election may go, a great deal of credit must be accorded to the democratic executive committee, and particularly to Mr. M. M. Eppstein, who has been working late and early and always for the success of the ticket, and to Mr. C. W. Murphy, the genial secretary, who has been almost too busy to eat or sleep. Success to them.

Superintendent Compton's charges against Dr. Scott, the memeber of the board of education from the Sixth ward, are almost astounding in character. It is remarkable that in this day such thoughts could be conceived. However, these charges present only one side of the case, and it is well to await the conclusions of the committee before entering into general criticism. The public will not be satisfied with anything short of a complete investigation. If the charges are proven, Dr. Scott will find himself a very unpopular quantity.

FRICK'S FIGHT.

Causes of the Homestead Trouble—The High Wages.

Mr. Richard Hartwell, one of the men now here from Homestead, soliciting aid for the locked-out iron and steel workers, thus relates how the trouble arose: "The Carnegie Steel company had been trying for some time to break up the Amalgamated association. In May, 1889, it posted big notices on the works to notify the association that it would not be recognized on and after July 1. It also sent individual contracts to the workmen to sign, provided they wanted to be employed. The scale expired on July 1, and no arrangement had been made. The company tried to import non-union men and failed. A few days later they tried to bring in workmen in the guise of deputy marshals. These were met at the gate by a large crowd and induced to leave. This was accomplished without any act of violence taking place. A few days later a conference was arranged by which an amicable arrangement was arrived at. The tonnage men suffered a reduction of 16 1-2 per cent. The men at all times have been willing to confer with the company; but Mr. Frick has never shown any disposition to meet the men and discuss the question. It has been evident from the time he became chairman of the company that he intended to fight the Amalgamated association. This is evidenced by the large fence, or barricade built round the works, with portholes, hot water pipes and so on. It was clearly proven before the congressional investigation committee that the company had made arrangements with Capt. Rogers to tow the Pinkerton forces up the river before negotiations were dropped with our association, and later in June, he signed the contract with Pinkerton to furnish men and with Rogers to furnish the boats.

"The men at Homestead have tried all honorable means to avoid the conflict, which has been inevitable. They could not sacrifice the demand of the Carnegie Steel company. The company made a demand of 10 to 40 per cent. reduction, and also for the expiration of the scale in January, instead of July, thus asking for its expiring at the very worst time of year for the men, and placing them at a further disadvantage."

Mr. James Bakewell, the companion of Mr. Hartwell, in speaking of the claim of very high wages paid said: "I am one of the highest paid men—a heater—and I never made more than $1,200 a year."

OHIO NEWSPAPER COMMENT.

A Happy Thought.

To republicans who have loved and lost, we will say that quail shooting will begin the second day after the election.—Dayton Times.

So It Does.

Attorney General Miller's circular to the deputy marshals looks like a baby force bill aimed at the Australian ballot.—Upper Sandusky Union.

They Piled the Wood.

He was a sly old Yankee who told some boys that a rabbit was under the wood-pile, and in consequence got the pile removed. The republican party are perceptibly up to the same racket, but the democrats are not to be ruled in that manner.—The Massillonian.

It May Mean No Cows or Fence.

Of course there is bound to be more or less solicitude lest the farmers in paying such close attention to their political fences next week will neglect the other kind. It is necessary that the country should be saved, of course, but it is also wise to see that the cows do not break in and trample the winter wheat.—London Nickel Plate.

Let Us Have Them.

Deeper harbors and deeper channels between the great lakes would mean more security for large vessels out in open water as well as while in the rivers and harbors. They could be made with much heavier and stronger hulls without sacrificing the great cargo capacity which permits low freight rates.—Cleveland Leader.

More Wheels to His Machine.

The action of President Harrison's administration in appointing deputy United States marshals to supervise the coming election in several states, indicates the purpose of those in control of the republican party to centralize our form of government. Republican success would mean the passage of the force bill and then good-by to American liberty.—Zanesville Signal.

Only One Congressman.

A correspondent wants to know if there is a state in the Union with only one congressman. There are ten such states in the present congress, namely: Colorado, Delaware, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Washington, Wyoming. In the next congress there will be but six: Delaware, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota, Wyoming.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Don't Hang Together.

A republican protectionist, if he has the nerve to attempt to justify the McKinley bill, will tell you that:

1. Free sugar means cheap sugar.
2. A high tariff on woolen goods means cheap woolens.
3. A high tariff on wool means a high price for wool.

If you have any brain you will tell this republican that his statements are absurdly contradictory.

If you have no intellect you will believe all he tells you and vote for Harrison.—Athens Journal.

THE ELECTION LOCALLY.

Everything Is Lovely and Ritchie Is Winning.

A Run Through the Various Precincts of the City—The Figures Obtained.

No figures can be given that will give any estimate of the result of to-day's election locally.

In the Eighth and Seventh wards Ritchie is running away ahead of his ticket. In the Third Ashley is being scratched considerably, and in the Fifth Ritchie is good for 400 majority.

In the First there is hardly an indication that there is an election. Ashley will run well in the First, probably ahead of his ticket.

In the Sixth Ashley is being scratched in every precinct. The Craig people are out to a man for Ashley, but the coercion that is being used will be more than offset by the independent railroad vote in the upper end of the ward.

The Ninth is good for Ritchie and the greatest surprise will probably be in the Eighth, where Ashley banked on 400.

Judge Scribner runs a good chance of the county and Pugsley will probably pull through with the national republican majority.

The following synopsis of the vote cast up until noon explains the situation:

In A of the Second 139 out of 323 had been cast up to noon. The republicans were scratching, but just what it meant could not be ascertained.

In B of the Third, 152 out of 329 had been cast up to noon, and in G of the Third only 90 out of 145 had been cast.

Eighth ward—Precinct I—At 11 o'clock 131 votes; registration, 250. At 7 o'clock there were 35 votes; at 8, 76; at 9, 100; at 10, 121; at 11, 131.

Seventh Ward.

Precinct I—At 12 o'clock 287 votes out of 420 registered.

Precinct F—215 votes out of 294 registered.

Precinct G—184 votes out of 270 registered.

Precinct E—181 votes out of 291 registered.

A very strong vote is being polled, but quiet reigns at every precinct. In precinct E of the Seventh ward a majority of the votes are democratic.

Old Fourth ward campaigners say that there never were prospects of such a heavy vote. Democrats are right in line, voting early and straight.

In precinct A of the Fourth there is very little scratching being done. Ritchie is receiving the full democratic vote all over the ward, while Ashley is being cut considerably.

In A of the Eighth ward Wendt and Ashley are suffering, and in B of the same ward Scribner and Ritchie are receiving a large republican vote. The judicial ticket is being badly cut up all over the ward.

A full vote is being polled in the Fourth as the following figures taken at noon will show:

	Registered.	Vote.
A	208	95
B	237	100
C	267	125
D	261	120
E	329	150

In the Sixth everything looks bright for Ritchie. In C at noon 270 out of a total of 482 had been cast.

In C of the Fifth 240 out a total of 389 had been cast at noon.

In F of the First 150 out of 330 had been cast at noon.

This averages up the result up to noon.

At 2 p. m. in A of the Ninth there were 270 out of 422 votes cast, and in precinct B, same time, 271 out of 421 cast.

At 2:30 there were 261 out of 369 votes cast in Precinct C of the Ninth, and in D 209 out of 300.

WAYS AND MEANS.

Good Prices for City Bonds—Fire Department Salaries.

City improvement bonds of different streets and $25,000 general bonds were sold last night by the ways and means committee on bids received.

C. Mathies offered for $769.05 Ostrich lane bonds and $903.26 of the alley between St. Clair and Jefferson streets par interest and $9 premium.

Parson, Leach & Co. offered for the $25,000 of 4 1-2 per cent. general improvement bonds par, interest and premium $632.50.

The Merchants and Clerks' Savings bank offered $797.05 and accrued interest for the Ostrich lane bonds; $904.26 and interest for the alley bonds; $5,949.57 for the Lawrence avenue, a premium of $10, and $7,451.05 for the Lafayette bonds, a premium of $15.

Brewster, Cobb & Estabrook offered $101.79 and accrued interest for the whole, but no part of the $25,000 lot.

The Merchants' National bank offered par, interest and $1 premium for the Ostrich lane lot.

H. J. Hayes & Co. offered for the $25,000 lot par, interest and $235 premium.

Spitzer & Co. offered for the Lagrange street, Lafayette street and Lawrence avenue lots $21,261.19, interest, and $15 premium, and $25,325 and interest for the $25,0000 lot.

N. W. Harris & Co. for the $25,000 lot offered $25,327.50 and accrued interest.

Seasongood & Mayer offered for the $25,000 bonds with accrued interest from September 1, 1892, $25,513.75.

After some discussion as to whether this meant that the bidders would give the interest or wanted to take it and as to whether Parson, Leach & Co.'s bid did not mean $632.50 premium and interest it was explained by Seasongood & Mayer's representative that their bid offered premium and interest added to the par value, and Parson, Leach & Co.'s representative declared that the $632.50 added in their bid included both interest and premium, making $723.25. The bid of Season good & Mayer was accepted and the highest bidders for all the others. No separate bid being in for the Lagrange street bonds they were sold to Spitzer & Co. at the proper proportion of their bid.

Fire Commissioner Hanner and Chief Wall appeared before the committee urging the passage of an ordinance changing some of the salaries of the fire department. They explained that the salary of the first assistant chief was raised from $1,200 to $1,500 a year; those of the captains' from $70 to $75 a month, and those of the old men $1.66 per month to $66.66. It was proposed to give new men $50 for the first six months and $55 for the second half year.

The solicitor called attention to the law which says that if the council cut down any of these salaries it must cut down all others in proportion. The matter was laid over for a week, an ordinance to be drawn in the meantime.

"MICKEY" SHEA

Achieving Some Distinction in the Empire State.

The New York World of yesterday gives an account of a meeting held in that city on Sunday evening, from which the following extract is taken:

There never was a more orderly or better behaved audience. It had only one grievance.—and this it could not help voicing at intervals—James Oliver, Esq., sat on the stage before them in all the glory of a dress suit and patent leathers and was not allowed to talk until neary every one else had done.

"Wat are dey tryin' to do wid Mr. Oliver?" demanded Mr. John Shea in a hoarse whisper, working his way around the crowd on the stage to the reporters' table. "Are dey goin' to turn him down?"

Mr. Shea wore an Alpine hat very much to the left side, and a purple necktie very much to the right side to show a sparkling thing in his shirt front. He was aggrieved, and he showed it. When it was explained to him that his patron was being kept in sight to hold the crowd he was somewhat relieved.

Mr. Shea is 14 years old and has been helping Mr. Harrity run the campaign at No. 139 Fifth avenue by putting brains into messenger service. He isn't a Bowery boy, but he felt perfectly at home in the Second district last night, because ever since he left peaceful Ohio to aid in electing Grover Cleveland he has divided his affections between the Bowery and the sergeant-at-arms, and now he can talk like Steve Brodie and walk with his shoulders.

W. H. SCOTT RESIGNS

From the Board of Library Trustees

In the following self-explanatory communication Mr. W. H. Scott severs his connection with the board of library trustees:

To the Common Council and Public Library Trustees of the City of Toledo:

I hereby tender my resignation of the office of trustee of the Toledo public library.

After nearly 20 years of continued effort to establish in Toledo a free public library worthy of our progressive city, the necessity has arisen for absence a large part of the year from the community with whose roughest experiences and best aspirations I have grown up from boyhood.

If the same co-operation that has so harmoniously united our excellent public schools, free manual training school, and public library, and which has so thoroughly commanded the good will of our people, shall happily continue as in all our past experience, our citizens will not regret the large expenditure that must always be a necessity for their support.

Though a well-stocked public library is already one of the best of the attainments of our city, there is yet much room for such advance as should make it a most essential part of a true people's university. Such most desirable accomplishment can only be brought about by attracting our schools, with their elementary teachings, into closer relationship with the books of the public library, whose pages are never to cease to offer about all there is of the best theory and example of life.

I wish that this may be more thoroughly accomplished by allowing greater facilities in all the public libraries of the country for the freest access to rooms where all helpful means may be provided to bring teacher and pupil in talking contact with interested and helpful librarians. Our library books should be taken into and made useful through all the school rooms of the city, and under the watchful care of the teachers.

Our beautiful and well provided public library should hereafter prove a most helpful part of such well diffused university extension as is now finding intelligent favor, for quick and evenly distributed intelligence among all classes must principally come from well recorded experience in book, periodical and newspaper.

Considering our close relations to that other excellent institution—the Manual Training school—may I not claim for it an always ready provision, by your library committee, of books necessary for helpful information in all its departments?

In my experience of a long and very congenial public occupation, nothing has been pleasanter that the recollection of the harmonious relations existing between members of the board, and the general disposition of our well tried librarians to do their duty.

W. H. SCOTT.

Toledo, Oct. 1, 1892.

Hearing of Mr. Scott's intention to resign, his co-workers on the board sent him the following:

Toledo, Oct. 3, 1892.

Wm. H. Scott, Esq., Toledo, O:

Dear Sir: Your associates, co-members of the board of trustees of the public library of the city of Toledo, learn with sincere regret of your contemplated resignation and withdrawal as one of the members of such board. The unanimity with which the members of the board, as manifested herewith, express such regret and ask your reconsideration of such contemplated action, ought to prevail as against the reasons suggested as the occasion of a withdrawal from amongst us.

The origin, success, popularity, and we believe, permanency, of our public library are, and will be in the largest degree credited to your forethought, constant attention and watchful care. Sacrifices of greater or less moment necessarily attend the faithful performance of duties falling to non-emolument positions of public trust and honor, and are seldom appreciated. The sacrifices of time, care, labor and attention which you have given in the faithful discharge of your duties both as its chief officer and as a member of 20 years, is not only appreciated by the general public, but as well by the board and by those who will succeed.

There is as much, if not more, demand in the near future for your continued care, labor, attention and counsel in the control, conduct and management of the public library as it has received in the past.

Very Respectfully,
C. A. KING,
F. J. HOAG,
FRANKLIN HUBBARD,
E. D. POTTER, Jr.,
HARVEY SCRIBNER,
R. C. LEMMON,
E. P. RAYMOND,
V. J. EMMICK, Mayor.

To this Mr. Scott replied:

Toledo, Nov. 5, 1892.

The Board of Trustees Toledo Public Library:

Gentlemen: Your generous and most kindly protest is gratefully acknowledged. But confident that there is no lack of excellent men in this community to fully take my place in the control of our now well-established institution, it only remains for me to say that sufficient reasons determine my resignation.

W. H. SCOTT.

A BUNCH OF DATES.

The Ys Will Hold a Parlor Meeting.

To-morrow (Wednesday) evening the Ys will hold a parlor meeting with Miss Florence Burgert, 2915 Cherry street.

The Emerson class held a pleasant meeting with Mrs. Harmon last evening.

The Humane society will meet Tuesday evening, November 15.

The Colloquial club will meet next Friday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, with the Misses Law, 1231 Huron street.

The Henrietta Monroe W. C. T. U. is meeting with Mrs. Stevens, on Dorr street, this afternoon.

The Woman's Building company meets Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Corporeal Punishment in the Schools.

To the Editor: The subject of corporal punishment in our public schools is at the present time creating much unfavorable comment, and the discussions carried on show in many cases considerable feeling and excitement among all classes.

It is a subject that will not down under the present management. The masses, not alone the parents of our children, but also the big brothers and sisters, say emphatically no—by a big majority whenever the subject comes up. Notwithstanding its indorsement by the Political Equality club of Toledo, so widely published last evening. In regard to the management of children this club don't count. If there be mothers among them, and they possess the original instincts of the lower animal creation, they must have voted to protect their young from brutal attacks from any source. If the press of Toledo seek to sustain our—as I think—unworthy superintendent of schools or the commissioners who sustain him in the cowardly act of beating or thrashing any person who is not his physical equal, they will very quickly learn that they are not with the people, and if the present policy is pursued the masses will see to it that this unpopular element be dropped from our school board as soon as the votes of the people can reach them.

UPPER SANDUSKY.

Upper Sandusky, Nov. 8.—(Special)—The weather here is good and both parties are hustling out the vote. Everything is quiet, however. As to the result in the county it is the general belief that the democrats will materially increase their majority of last year.

NEW STREET RAILROAD.

Fremont, Nov. 8.—(Special)—Arrangements have been about completed for a new electric street railway in this city to cost over $200,000, by Boston and local capitalists. All right of way has been secured.

TWO QUEER CASES.

Crookedness That Civil Suits Sometimes Evolve.

Among the many peculiar cases that turn up in the justice courts few are more interesting than two of somewhat analagous character heard within a few days before Justice Austin. One was a forcible detainer suit on its face, but the hearing developed a suspicion of forgery. The plaintiff was D. V. R. Manly, cashier of the Second National bank, and the defendant Mrs. C. A. Gurley, a widow, whose husband rented from a man who sold the property to Mr. Manly, he thus becoming landlord under the purchased lease. The defense was that the tenant could not be turned out, as she had paid her rent for a month in advance. She testified that she had sent the money, $9, by her late husband's partner; that he had taken it to Mr. Manly's house, given it and a prepared receipt to a lady who came to the door and who went in and returned shortly and brought back the receipt signed. This receipt was produced. The other side denied the receipt of the money, and Mrs. Manly, her mother and the servant girl, all the female household, severally swore never to have seen the man or the money. Mrs. Manly, who formerly signed such receipts with her husband's name and her own initials, repudiated this one. She said: "It is not my writing, but looks like an imitation of my writing." The messenger did not pay enough attention to the person taking the money from him and giving him back the receipt to be able to identify her again. As it could not be proven that the plaintiff received the money, he was given an order of restitution for the premises.

The other case was that of Mrs. Jennie Meyers against S. W. Flowers, for $65, as value of a watch her son had left at Flower's shop to be repaired. This was in January, 1891, and nothing was said of it for a year and a half. Mrs. Meyers was bedridden and her son worked early and late and such hours as to miss Flower's shop when open. The watch was considered safe. After this long time Mrs. Meyers sent a colored man employed by her to ask the charges on the watch and found they were $2.50. A few days after a young man (not young Meyers) entered Flower's shop, asked for the Meyers watch, pointed it out, laid down the exact amount due, and took away the timepiece, without a suspicion on the part of the clerk that anything was wrong. When Mrs. Meyers again asked for the watch she was told how it had been supposedly sent to her. She valued it highly as a family relic; but watchmakers, called as witnesses, testified that no one would buy such a watch for the works, and it was really worth only value of the old gold in the cases. The puzzle is now, who got the watch, and how he came to know it and the price to pay for the repairs.

SUPPOSABLY FUNNY.

Reason 'Nough.

With gloomy face she went about;
In smiles none ever found her;
Her front teeth had been taken out,
And gloom was all around her.

But changes oft in life are met,
Monotony beguiling;
Last week she got a brand-new set,
And now she's always smiling.

A Defective Memory.

"Were you ever married by a justice of the peace?" asked Mrs. Newlywed of her friend, Mrs. Brown-Smith-Whitefones. "Never that I remember," replied her friend after a moment's reflection.—Detroit Free Press.

Making Hay.

Penelope—Let's walk on the other side of the street.

Perdita—But the sun's on this side of the street.

Penelope—Yes, but old Mr. Mightieriche's son is on the other side of the street.

Time's Changes.

Unexpected But True.

At a lecture on "The Decline of Literature," the eloquent orator shouted: "Where are the Chaucers, and Shakespeares, and Miltons, and Spensers, and Macauleys? Where are they, I say?

And a voice answered sadly from the gallery: "All dead!"

Charlie (in raptures)—So you will marry me! Tell me, do you love me? Clara—No, I don't; but Agnes Murray does, and I hate her.

Their Way.—Mr. Bragg A. Doda (of Chicago)—"Yes, sir; when we people attempt to do anything we roll up our sleeves and pitch in."

Mr. Fulton (of New York)—"Yes, I have noticed it; I took dinner in your town once."—Puck.

"Did Mr. Pimpernickel dance with you?" "That's what he called it."—Chicago News-Record.

Pure Paste.

"I always knew it was unlucky to sit down to dinner with thirteen at the table," remarked Chumpley, as the other twelve filed out and left him to pay the bill.—Philadelphia Record.

Specially Designed.

Manager—"Madam, I have created a part to suit your peculiar talents."

Prospective Star—"Oh, thank you. And may I ask what it is?"

Manager—"Certainly. You have merely to be taken suddenly ill before each performance."

A Warning.

When Maud and I last chanced to meet
I made love in short meter,
And told her that she was so sweet
That I could almost eat her.

That night I dreamed I had done so,
And took that meal with glee.
Was it a warning? This I know—
She disagreed with me.
—Judge.

AN AUTUMN IMPRESSION.

I stood in the hills when autumn
Had painted them crisp and brown,
And saw the robes of the forest
Falling regretfully down—
At least the wavering motion,
Of each gold and scarlet leaf
Seemed to me as if voicing
The soul of unspoken grief.

The bare, blue arms of the buckeyes,
The gaunt, dead limbs of the pines,
Were full of sorrowful meaning
As a heart when it hope resigns.
The wind with a low intoning,
A requiem softly sung;
And mist, like of tears, was falling
As from heart of nature wrung.

The grasses were dried and withered,
The song birds had mostly fled;
The flowers had long since been gathered
And Summer lay cold and dead.
A funeral train was passing—
The mourners I seemed to hear—
Muffled and low was the sobbing,
Tear-stained the face of the year.

* * * * * *

The notes of the wind grew louder,
And trembled each tiny spray;
The skies overhead grew brighter,
And the mists were swept away.
The gold of the sunbeams falling,
Changed the erstwhile mournful scene,
Until it appeared bedecking
The throne of a royal queen.

The light in the west was gorgeous—
Most brilliant of all the day,
Kissing the forest-clad mountains,
And gilding each leaf and spray.
It seemed to me as a message
That darkness and death and pain
Were steps in life's great procession—
That all things should live again.

WOULD HE SUIT?

Well, When She Understood His Capacities, She Hired Him.

A boarding house in Detroit advertised for a hall boy. Among a host of applicants was a raw-boned, lanky youth, who rung the door bell and was met by the landlady herself.

"Want a boy?" he asked, shifting from one foot to the other.

"Yes," said the landlady, taking an inventory of the applicant.

"House run by a miesus?"

"Yes."

"Be you she?"

"Yes."

"An' you want a boy ta 'tend door, run errants, trot to the grocery, sit in a cold hall, say you're out 60 times a day and keep agents and tin peddlers and kids offen th' steps?"

"Yes," said the astonished woman, "that's just what I do want."

"Much money in it?" queried the boy.

"Two dollars and fifty cents a week."

"Promises, or cash down?"

"You get your money regularly if you earn it."

"I'm your huckleberry, missis. W'ot kin I dew first? Start out on a collectin' tower, or make the fires in the sick boarders' rooms, or watch out for the fellow that is going to slide his trunk out 'ithout payin' his board?"

"Look here," said the landlady, "you know too much. I guess we can't make a trade."

"All right mum. If 'sperience and knowhow don't go for something, I ain't in it. But you'll be sorry, mum, when the butcher comes around with his last year's bill. I'm a pacifyer of the first water, but if you don't—"

She hired him.—Detroit Free Press.

THE TRUTH ABOUT NYE'S NOTARIAL BOND.

(From his confession in the Century for November.)

It was at this time also that I was chosen by the governor to act as notary public. The appointment came to me wholly unsought on my part. When I went to bed at night I had no more idea that I would be a notary public in the morning than the reader has. It was a case where the office sought the man, and not he man the office. I held this position for six years, and no one can say that in that time I did a wrong official act as notary public. My seal cost me $6, and in the six years that I held the office I swore eighteen men at 25 cents each, two of whom afterward paid me. I was obliged to give a bond, however, as notary public. I do not know why, exactly, for the fees were my own, if I got any. I used to deal with a boot and shoe man whom I will call Quidd, and we were on friendly terms. I bought my boots of him, and scorched the heels thereof on his hot stove on winter evenings, when times were dull and the wintry blast outside reduced the profits of the cattle business.

I casually asked Mr. Quidd to sign my bond as notary public, and told him what a sinecure it would be for him; but to my astonishment his chin quivered, his eyes grew dim with unshed tears, as he told me, with his hand trembling in mine, that he wished he could, but that he had promised his dying mother, juts as the light of the glory world lighted up her eyes, that he would never sign a bond or note with any one.

I said: "Do not mind this, Mr. Quidd; it is a trifling matter. Others will sign. I will get some comparative stranger to sign with me. Do not feel badly over it." On the way home I got Edward Ivinson, Gen. Worth, Otto Gramm, Henry Wagner, Abraham Idleman, Charles Kuster, Dr. Harris, William H. Root, and James Milton Sherrod, the squaw-man of the Buffalo Wallow, to sign my bond. All of these were men of probity and property, and the bond was said to be the best notarial bond that was ever floated in Wyoming.

On the following day a case in my court as justice of the peace required a bond on the part of a saloonkeeper, and he went out a moment to get a surety. He was hardly out of the office before he returned with the name of Mr. Quidd. After that I bought my boots elsewhere. I could not trust a man who would so soon forget his promise to his dying mother. Years have flown by, and gray hairs have come on the head of Mr. Quidd, though I haven't a gray hair yet, and may not have for years, but I have always purchased my boots elsewhere.

LININGS FOR TEA CHESTS.

It is often said that tea chests are lined with tin-foil, but just as there is no lead in a lead pencil so there is no tin in this tin-foil. The thin lining consists of lead, and is said to be the purest lead that can be found, writes Ernest Elborough in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Among the countless undeveloped resources of the Celestial empire is a supply of lead which would yield millions annually if properly worked, and from the inexhaustible supply the Chinese take what they need for making linings for tea chests.

The lead is melted in small vessels, and poured out while hot. Before it has time to cool it is pressed into a sort of mould, and when enough squares have been produced they are soldered together, and the sheet thus formed is placed in the chest as a lining.

Then the top layer of lead is soldered on, and all possibility of the tea losing strength on the voyage is at an end. The lead is so pure and the solder used is so fine that the lining of an empty chest is worth much more than the chest itself, and is in great demand for making the best quality of solder.

How the smooth, tin-like appearance can be produced without the aid of polishing or other machinery would be a mystery were it not for the fact that the native Chinaman is even more industrious and ingenious when at home than when he has spent a few years in this country and begun to entertain hopes of decent pay and reasonable hours.

Ben Butler is old and growing physically feeble, but that does not prevent him from monopolizing the hunting supply before a big celebration. Whoever celebrates victory in November will pay tribute to Butler, and that seems to be the only part he is taking in this campaign.

Emanuel Lasker, the chess expert, the other day played five simultaneous games of chess blindfolded and won them inside of an hour and a half.

Miss Braddon, the novelist, was once an actress.

Deserving Confidence.—There is no article which so richly deserves the entire confidence of the community as Brown's Bronchial Troches. Those suffering from asthmatic and bronchial diseases, coughs, and colds, should try them. Price 25 cents.

In retaliation for the statement by Dr. Lombroso, the Italian scholar, that "it is almost impossible to find a perfectly sincere woman," aleading woman's club in Philadelphia has solemnly resolved that "it is as natural for the average man to lie as to eat." Let this go no further.

Richard Friese, the German artist whose work is becoming better known on this side of the Atlantic, was long ago called "the Landseer of Germany." He was first brought into notice by the patronage of the old Emperor William, and he enjoys the favor of the present kaiser.

The lace bark tree grows in the West Indies. It is a lofty tree, with ovate, entire smooth leaves and white flowers. It is remarkable for the tenacity of its inner bark and the readiness with which the inner bark may be separated after maceration in water into layers resembling lace.

Nature is her own barometer in some cases. One of the most remarkable productions of the Isles of Chiloe is the celebrated "barometer trees," which grow in great profusion in all salt marshes. In dry weather the bark of this natural barometer is as smooth and white as that of a sycamore, but with the near approach of storms these characteristics vanish like magic and the bark turns black.

Mrs. Hannibal Hamlin, the wife of the late Vice President Hamlin, who served with Lincoln during the war, is a most intellectual and lovely woman. She lives in the old Hamlin homestead in Bangor, Me., and is perfectly content in that beautiful city. She is surrounded by hosts of friends at all times and entertains at every season of the year.

The whole Moslem race despise and abhor the sound of bells, which they say cause the evil spirits to assemble together. They do not use them on their mosques or churches, but have instead men called muezzins, stationed in the minarets, who call out five times each day for the people to assemble fro prayer. The cry is: "There is no god by God, and Mohammed is His prophet."

Princess Zuleikha, the favorite daughter of Osman Pasha, the heroic defender of Plevna, is the only woman of the Turkish race who is known to possess the poetical talent, though no doubt it is dormant in the many voiceless myriads who are hidden behind the curtains of the harem. The princess is young, handsome, attractive, with the large languishing eyes of the orient and the fair skin of her European mother. It is not wonderful that she is a poetess, for she lives in the very home of romance—in a marble palace built in the mysterious circuit of Constantinople, and commanding a splendid view of the miraculous panorama of the Golden Horn, and the spot where Europe stretches out an iron hand to Asia.

A writer in the Medical Record, who has had much experience as a physician among the Chinese on the Pacific coast, notes especially the speedy healing of wounds on these people, which, he says, must be due to their diet and habits of bodily cleanliness. From early youth they are constantly in the water, and you find the lowliest washing their bodies twice a day. Their diet is mostly vegetable, in which rice and tea form the foundation, to which are added green vegetables, as young turnip tops, spinach, kale, or similar garden truck. Occasionally they add to this oysters, fish, pork and fowl, principally chickens or ducks. Beef, mutton and veal they use in no way. Possibly this may explain the quick healing power, which is marvelous. The tissues of their bodies cut differently—that is, they feel differently under the knife—from those of the Caucasian subject. They are more dense and elastic, and not so friable.

PAWNTICKET ROMANCE.

Adela March wrung her white, jeweled hands and looked in despair at the portentously lengthy dressmaker's bill and the note that accompanied it.

"Adela, aunt wants you. Mrs. Elton is in the drawing-room."

"Tell her I'll be down in a minute, Clarice," said Adela, hiding away the dressmaker's bill and hurriedly beginning to rearrange her disheveled hair.

Mrs. Tracy was a very elegant looking woman as she sat in her handsome drawing-room.

"You haven't shown me the emerald bracelet that your son sent you from Paris," said her visitor.

"The sweetest thing," ejaculated Mrs. Tracy, lifting her plump hands. "Clarice, here is the key of my jewel-drawer; go and get the crimson velvet case in the left-hand corner."

Clarice stepped forward from her obscure corner, meekly took the key and left the room.

Clarice, standing just behind them, with the velvet jewel case in her hand, started violently.

"Aunt Sara," she said, in a low, stifled voice, "here is your bracelet."

Meanwhile Adela March, sweeping down through her aunt's rooms with pale cheeks artificially touched with a shadow of rouge, went to the elegant rosewood dressing bureau to sprinkle her lace handkerchief with scented waters. She started a little as she caught sight of her aunt's jewel drawer with the key still in it. The next moment she had opened it and stood looking at the sparkling array within.

"Oh, if all these were mine!" pondered Adela, with greedy eyes and parted lips. "Fanny Lacy often pawns her diamonds to meet troublesome debts—and she can redeem them again within a few days. My allowance is due next week; but Madame Trijeune will not wait. I don't think Aunt Sara would ever know if I borrowed one of these sparkling toys for just a week."

It was a bleak winter twilight, with stray flakes of snow drifting about in the air, and a dismal wind moaning through the streets, as Mr. St. Maur paused opposite the Tracy mansion.

"Surely I can't be mistaken," thought George St. Maur, straining his eyes through the uncertain dusk. "It was Adela March—and she came down the steps alone! Where can she be going at this time of night, and by herself! I don't suppose it is any of my business—nevertheless I don't think it is safe for a pretty girl to be running about the street alone, and I shall just take the liberty of keeping at a little distance and see that she isn't molested."

So George St. Maur lighted his cigar, and calmly walked down the street, a few rods behind the veiled figure that flitted through the twilight like a phantom.

She turned out of the avenue after a few blocks and went eastward.

"Here's a genuine adventure," pondered St. Maur. "Where can she be going? Hallo! do my eyes deceive me, or has she actually disappeared into a pawnbroker's dingy establishment?"

Mr. St. Maur pulled up the collar of his coat, and leaned against a doorway.

Five minutes afterward Adela came out.

Suddenly her foot slipped and she fell. Miss March recovered her footing in an instant and was speeding on once more.

But, under the glare of a flickering lamp, just where she had slipped, there lay something white and indistinct, which was not the newly fallen snow. George St. Maur stooped and picked up a lace-bordered handkerchief, reeking with perfume, within whose folds lay—a dingy pawn ticket.

That evening Mrs. Tracy's footman carried a sealed note to Madame Trijuene containing the full amount of her bill.

* * * * * * *

"Tell me, Clarice Tracy, what you have done with that diamond cross. I insist upon knowing."

"Indeed, indeed, Aunt Sara, I have not touched it."

"Is there no one else who could have got to your jewel drawer, ma'am?" questioned the policeman who had been summoned by Mrs. Tracy's orders.

"No one; no one but Clarice knows where I keep my key—no one but Clarice ever goes there. She must have taken it."

Clarice had risen to her feet with eyes that were quite calm now, and a round, fiery spot on each pallid cheek.

While Clarice Tracy stood there, pale and motionless, the door opened, and the footman announced:

"Mr. St. Maur."

George St. Maur looked from Clarice to Adela, who still stood by the window.

"Do you believe that your cousin stole that cross, Miss March?" he asked, quietly.

Adela's beautiful eyelashes drooped sympathetically.

"What else can I believe, Mr. St. Maur?" she lisped, gracefully.

He turned to Adela with a face of ineffable scorn.

"Allow me to return the pawnbroker's ticket that you received for your aunt's diamond cross. The next time you pawn valuables let me recommend a little more caution in preserving the ticket!"

"Adela!" shrieked Mrs. Tracy, "you pawned my diamond cross!"

"Clarice," faltered the lady, turning to her niece, "I am very sorry I accused you falsely; you won't think anything more of it, will you?"

"Aunt Sara," said Clarice, in a low, subdued voice, "I forgive you—fully and freely; but—after the base suspicions with which you have regarded me I can no longer remain an inmate of your house."

"But where will you go, Clarice? How will you live?" pleaded Mrs. Tracy.

"I do not know," said the girl. "I—I am homeless now."

"Not homeless, Clarice," said George St. Maur, taking her cold hand tenderly. "Hereafter, dearest, my home shall be yours, if you will condescend to accept its shelter as my wife."

Two hours subsequently, Mrs. St. Maur was standing within the handsome apartments of the stately old St. Maur mansion, with her maid's officious hands removing the simple little bonnet that Clarice Tracy had worn until it was preternaturally shabby.

WOMAN'S HIGHER EDUCATION.

What Girl Students Are Doing at American Universities and in Far Japan.

This year is an epoch making period in the history of the higher education of women. Four great institutions, hoary St. Andrews and young Chicago, Brown and Tufts admit women to all their privileges and honors; two others, Yale and the University of Pennsylvania, open their post graduate courses for the first time to women. Without other ceremonies than chapel exercises, the University of Chicago opened on October 1 with women among its officers and professors, while among its 600 students enrolled nearly one-third are women. About 30 women students are registered at Yale, and the time of registration does not expire until November. This new movement at Yale places women on an equality with men in the pursuit of the highest learning possible in America. Its very inception is already a success, but it is to be regretted that there is at Yale no such institution as the mathematical tripos of Cambridge, by which a comparative test of the ability of men and women students may be made. There is, however, a prize awarded to the writer of the best essay on certain subjects covering topics studied in the departments of the university. A year's research and preparation are permitted for this essay, and to win the prize is to take the highest university honor.

College girls are taking a lively interest in politics this year, and demonstrate their principles according to the traditional methods. At Smith college the republican girls' club formed a procession and marched through the corridors, while the democratic girls assailed them with missiles and sarcasm. At Mount Holyoke the campaign has opened with a republican rally, and clubs have been formed and supplied with banners and decorations. Two members of the senior class have been chosen to represent the candidates, and some of the young women made addresses at a flag raising amid great enthusiasm, and supplemented by national airs played by the band and the singing of campaign songs. The students have registered, and on election day will vote with the rest of the free and equal citizens of the republic, and that their votes will not be counted in among the returns is not their fault.

Even in distant Japan, that country of caste and traditions, the advance movement is manifested. Pundita Ramabai has opened her school for women and has among her pupils 34 child widows and 10 more widows. The school was opened with an address, wife of an eminent judge and an orthodox Hindoo. Another school is to be opened in Japan by a highly educated Japanese lady, Mrs. Tel Soun, where she will teach the native women of her own rank.

An interesting bit of news comes from Michigan university, where a mother has recently entered the freshman class with her two sons.—New York Sun.

WORDS WISE AND TRUE.

Better three hours too soon than one minute too late.

Let friendship creep gently to a height; if it rush to it, it may soon run itself out of breath.

Good taste rejects excessive nicety; it treats little things as little things, and is not hurt by them.

One gains courage by showing himself poor; in that manner one robs poverty of its sharpest sting.

A false friend is like a shadow on a dial; it appears in clear weather, but vanishes as soon as the cloud approaches.

The mind of the scholar, if you would have it large and liberal, should come in contact with other minds. It is better that his armor should be somewhat bruised by rude encounters even, than hang forever rusting on the wall.

"About seven or eight months ago I was attacked by a cough, and at once began to take a medicine much advertised as an expectorant, and continued using it until I had taken about six bottles. Instead of giving me relief, it only made me worse. I tried several other remedies, but all in vain, and I don't think I had three whole nights' rest during my illness. I began to think that had laid hold of me, and my hopes of recovery were all gone. I was a mere skeleton, but a friend of mine, who had been some time away, called to see me. He recommended me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and kindly sending me a bottle, I took it, but with little hopes of recovery. I am thankful, however, to say that it cured me, and I am to-day enjoying the best of health."—J. Wilmot Payne, Monrovia, Liberia.

MISFIT MISFIT MISFIT

SOMEWHAT STARTLING

Are the Charges Made by Superintendent Compton

Against Dr. Scott, the Sixth Ward Member,

In the School Board—The Document in Full—Referred to a Committee—The Gallette and Peugh Case.

The board of education held a very quiet but important meeting last evening. Superintendent Compton read a communication from Miss Beckwith requesting permission to use a vacant room in the Sherman street school for a kindergarten in the Seventh ward. The board voted to furnish the room, seats and heat.

The chairman of the committee on discipline read the following report disposing of the Gallette whipping case:

Report of Teacher's Committee on Case of Harry Gallette.

The report of your committee on teachers, schools and discipline, relative to the case of the Gallette boy, involves an important question, namely: Whether unruly, vicious boys shall be compelled at school to observe law and order and be taught respect for the rights and authority of others, or whether they shall be excluded from the schools and put upon the streets to grow up in ignorance and vice, and thus constantly replenish the ranks of older and more hardened criminals who meet their fate in the workhouses and penitentiaries and upon the gallows. It is an actual and serious condition which confronts the people of this and every large city. The necessity for the infliction of physical pain as a means of correction and punishment is to be deplored. But the tendency to crime and disorder exists in human nature and it must be held in check. If all homes and all parents were what they should be, there would be little need of physical punishment in the schools, but unfortunately teachers have under their care children who have never been governed, who have evil hereditary tendencies, who resent all authority and who are sustained and encouraged by their misguided parents in whatever they do. In these cases the task of the most faithful teacher is a difficult and hopeless one. The ruin of the child is almost an absolute certainty. In investigating this case we find that our truant officer has been compelled to take 64 boys to the reform farm at Lancaster. One of the most recent cases was a boy whose father came before this board several different times about four years ago and maligned the superintendent and teachers because they had tried to correct and govern this vicious, disobedient boy. The father himself soon lost all control and authority over the boy and in despair besought the truant officer only last week to help him find his son and take him to Lancaster. There are probably 100 more truant, lawless boys among the 5,000 in the schools, who ought to be confined at Lancaster. But the institution is crowded and its capacity limited. What shall be done with this percentage of 100 incipient criminals? Do the law and order loving citizens of Toledo want them turned loose upon the streets night and day to pillage and murder, to sleep in barns and outhouses and lumber yards? Or will they have them kept in school and by the use of force, if need be, as well as by helpful words and deeds of kindness, trained for honest and intelligent citizenship? We believe that there can be but one reply to this question from the great mass of the people among whom exist the common sense, the sound judgment, the conserving forces of society. In justification of the foregoing statements we wish further to say that while investigating this case referred to us we find that the criminally inclined percentage of boys in the schools do not hesitate to carry concealed and dangerous weapons to school with which they may resist authority or inflict injury upon class-mates. In this office at the present time is a miscellaneous assortment of weapons large and small, comprising pistols and revolvers, sling-shots, knives and other dangerous instruments. These have been taken from school boys and sent here with reports of the cases. "Are these weapons ever used?" you ask. Yes. Hear one or two of the most recent illustrations. There is no time for more. Three weeks ago a boy maliciously plunged one of the knives now in this office into the thigh of a class-mate, cutting a gash two inches long and one inch deep. Five or six days ago one of the best teachers in this city reported that she had placed her children in line with hands folded in front of them. A vicious boy with a concealed knife blade projecting from his side just even with the folded hands passed along the line and cut the hands and fingers of 11 children so that their blood dripped upon the floor. Not long ago, as some of you many remember, a well-known citizen was driving quietly by one of our large school buildings. He was struck by a missile from a sling-shot which laid his lip and cheek open to the bone. Ten days ago a boy stood out in the yard of a building. The window was raised. He took deliberate aim with a sling-shot at a boy who was studying at his desk and struck him fairly in the side of the head with a stone. Not long ago a boy was out of the line and entering the building in disorder. The teacher placed him in line and admonished him. In revenge he waited until school was out and placing himself at the foot of the stairs he hurled a rotten egg at his teacher's face, spattering the teacher's clothing and the doorway of the building. We could give you dozens more of equally revolting cases. Now, what shall be done with these vicious boys? If a teacher confronts such boys as these with a switch, shall someone step her hand and advertise her to the whole city as brutal and inhuman? Fellow members of this board, if you set the seal of your most emphatic condemnation upon this sort of interference you will best voice the judgment and the feeling of the order loving and law abiding people of this city. We have an army of 12,000 children enrolled in our schools. Order, industry, obedience, must be maintained and taught or we may as well dismiss these children to their homes, discharge our teachers, lock up our schoolhouses and return the public money to its owners. One bad boy in a school, or ten, cannot be permitted to delay the progress of 50 other well-behaved children whose parents send them to school for a serious purpose. As to the special case of the Gallette boy: Before our investigation, the father of this boy had come to this board twice with grave charges. On his second appearance this committee gave notice eight days in advance that it would hear Mr. Gallette's witnesses and give him an opportunity to prove his charges. On the date set, as you know, Mr. Gallette appeared and claimed that his boy was innocent and that he was cruelly punished, but he presented nothing to prove either statement. On the contrary, it was asserted by the witnesses whom Mr. Gallette himself introduced that his boy was guilty and a leader in the fight. Mr. Gallette brought neither his boy nor the doctor who claimed the boy was injured. He explained the absence of the boy by saying he was afraid of a "release," although the boy was shown to have been almost constantly on the street, going fishing, swimming, flying kites and attending public meetings on Columbian day. And this committee has since learned on the most reliable evidence that on the very evening this investigation was held, the Gallette boy, who could not even come here, so his father said, for fear of "a release"—on that same evening the boy attended a concert at Lincoln hall. The boy's teachers testified to his guilt, saying that the boy, although a coward at heart, was vicious, mendacious and untruthful. The boy's class-mates who participated in the fight, and were whipped with him all said that Harry Gallette organized the fight by writing the names of the boys on a slate, together with a challenge, holding it up in school; that Harry carried a club or "billy" made of cherry wood with which to fight; that he smoked cigars and cigarettes. In view of all this evidence from creditable witnesses, your committee is of the opinion that Harry Gallette deserved the punishment he received and that it is extremely improbable that this whipping caused any physical trouble whatever with which he claims to have been afflicted. We exonerate Superintendent Compton from these unjust and untruthful charges and commend his action which broke up this organized "gang" of boys who were demoralizing the entire South school. In closing this report we ask you by your vote to serve notice upon the lawless, unruly boys of this city and such parents as sustain them and defend them, that the board of education of this city will tolerate no fighting, truancy, disrespect to teachers, lawlessness or crime of any kind in the schools over which it has jurisdiction; that it will aid and sustain the superintendent and teachers in its employ to govern this army of children and guide them patiently, firmly and kindly if possible, but by force if need be, along the paths of knowledge to upright and useful citizenship.

H. A. SCHLINGMAN,
F. HUBBARD,
F. W. EVERSMAN,
Committee.

The committee appointed to reconsider the discharge of Daniel W. Peugh, janitor of the Monroe street school, reported that while Mr. Peugh could not be reinstated at the Monroe street school, his appointment elsewhere would not be opposed by the committee. Both reports were approved by the board.

Dr. Beckwith submitted a blank form of certificate of vaccination with the request that the board have enough printed to supply the city physicians. The matter was referred to the superintendent.

A motion to adjourn was made, but before it was put Superintendent Compton requested to be heard on a matter. A motion to hear him prevailed and he read as follows:

Gentlemen of the Board of Education:

I have served you for over ten years in the various capacities of teacher, examiner, clerk of the board of education and superintendent of schools. In all that time I have had no disagreement with a board member. We have worked together up to the organization of the present board of education without an unpleasant word, without a single jar. But within the last five months one member of this board, Dr. E. E. Scott, of the Sixth ward, East Toledo, taking advantage of his official position, has made requests of me and urged upon me measures which no self-respecting man could for a moment entertain. I firmly and conscientiously believe that my duty to the public, the teachers and the schools, requires that I should lay before you in regular written form enough of the measures urged upon me by Dr. Scott to show you the spirit and the character of the man.

Early last spring, soon after he had taken his oath of office, he came to me and proposed that I enter into a plan with him to oust all Catholic teachers, irrespective of age, sex, experience or efficiency, from their positions in the schools.

I told him that, with a few exceptions, I did not know who were Catholics and who were not. He replied that he had facilities for ascertaining just who were Catholics and that he could readily obtain a list. I then said that hitherto we had applied no test to teachers except the test of scholarship and successful experience; that if the test of religious belief or nationality was to be applied in employing teachers, the board of education must take the responsibility and he must see the individual members. This he did, as some of you, doubtless, well remember, and his scheme met with such prompt and emphatic discouragement from you that he abandoned the attempt to have all teachers of the Catholic faith discharged. But he still adhered to the determination of having all the Catholics in the Sixth ward removed. It chanced that there were but three among the 28 teachers of the Sixth ward. Dr. Scott again appeared at my office early in June and began conversation by using this expression, which I noted at the time from the peculiarity of its syntax: "Them Catholic teachers in my ward has got to go."

Some of you are already familiar with the measures he resorted to in order to carry his point. He threatened to vote and talk against any and every measure proposed by me or the teachers' committee in the future; he represented that this was what he had been made a member of the board for; that he had numerous letters and petitions from individuals demanding that these three teachers be dismissed. In the face of all this, the three Catholic teachers were not re-employed and one notoriously inefficient Protestant teacher was dropped with them. Soon after, as you will recall, you became convinced that injustice had been done Miss Sullivan and re-employed her, but in the extreme northwestern part of the city, in the Parkland school, in order to avoid trouble with Dr. Scott, Miss Sullivan, who lives in East Toledo, has now to leave her home at 7 o'clock in the morning, use two different lines of cars, teach a different grade and eat a cold lunch at mid-day in order that peace in the board might be maintained. You will recall the fact that at the regular board meeting of August 29, Dr. Scott being absent, at the request of Mr. Kohn, you appointed Miss Bertha Sugarman to a position as teacher of the first grade primary at Raymer school. East Toledo. Miss Sugarman had finished the 11 years' course of the Toledo schools, graduating from the high school in the class of '91. She had proved herself an excellent student and had won the highest regard of her teachers by her lady-like deportment and fine scholarship. She had also complied with the regulations of this board which requires a graduate to enter the training class of teachers and to go into the lower grades for the period of three months as a visiting and substitute teacher.

Dr. Scott was very indignant when he heard of the appointment of Miss Sugarman, although she lived on the East Side at no great distance from the school to which she had been appointed. He came to my office a few days after the board meeting and said that he saw "that Jew" had been appointed in his ward and he wasn't going to have her over there. He asked if she had a certificate to teach. I told him she had held one certificate, which had expired, but that she had applied for another on September 3; that the papers had not yet been read and reported upon, owing to the press of other work on the opening of school. He then said with great vehemence: "Well, I want you to make her fail. I have no use for a Jew, and I don't want her over there. Just mark her down so she can't get a certificate, and then she will have to get out." I replied that she was said to be a good scholar, but that I would get Mr. Boone's and Mr. Vorhiede's grades, read her papers which I had and report to him later. In a few days he came again to inquire, and I told him I had not yet received Miss Sugarman's grades from the other examiners, but that I had looked at the papers which I had and they were good. He repeated the dishonorable demand of his former visit, and said in addition:

"Let me have her papers, I'll make her fail. I hate a Jew as bad as I do a Catholic." He also said, "The people over there are mad about this, too, and are just giving me the devil for letting her get in." A few days elapsed and he came the third time. I told him it was useless to urge this thing upon me further, that her papers were excellent, ranging from 95 to 100 per cent. He then read her grammar paper himself and ceased to importune me to make her fail. This was the first time in my 22 years' of experience as a teacher and examiner that I had ever been urged to do such a dishonorable and heartless act, though I had been asked a few times by sympathizing friends to give certificates to applicants who had fallen below the required standard. You yourself were witness to the two persistent attempts in which Dr. Scott almost succeeded, to transfer Miss Sugarman from Raymer to Glass-ford school, and thus inflict upon her, working at a salary of $25 a month, the same useless and unnecessary hardships which Miss Sullivan has to undergo. I invite your patience to hear but one more illustration of this man's character and of the dishonorable demands he has made upon me. During the month of September the two highest grades in the Franklin school were crowded. It seemed necessary to have another room in which to put a mixed grade formed from the overflow of these two grades. Dr. Scott conceived the idea of renting the Sunday school room of the Baptist church and fitting it up for a school and putting two teachers there, occupying the vacant rooms in the Franklin building with two new teachers and such pupils as were left and could be brought in from Raymer. I looked at the church, estimated the expense of church rent, gas, placing of school furniture and two extra teachers, and saw that it would range from $600 to $1,000. I told him that I considered this a useless expenditure of public money, that I could adjust the whole trouble in twenty minutes by putting the three small primaries, having altogether about 100 pupils, into two rooms, thus securing a vacant room and utilizing the teacher, who was already employed, and saving all expense. This displeased the doctor. He said, "The city can afford to pay this and I want you to keep quiet. I want to make friends over here. I want to make a good showing for the East Side and get a lot purchased and a new building under way up on Oak street. If this church is rented it will help me to get what I want in he board."

Your building committee and teachers' committee were consequently called together. Dr. Scott presented his scheme in a plausible way. I was asked no questions, so I maintained what was, perhaps, a culpable silence. You consented to his plan and named the teachers for the two new places. But your committee had no sooner left this room and gone to their homes than Dr. Scott, lingering behind, came to me and said, "Now I didn't want to mention this before the committees, but I want you to slip Miss —— (naming the notoriously inefficient teacher referred to before, who had been dropped), into one of these places instead of one of those teachers agreed upon by the committees. They'll never know it, and I have promised privately that she shall have a place." I told him I would do nothing of the kind, that if he wanted the agreement of the committees changed he must see them and get their consent. After urging the matter for some time, he went away, saying he would see the committees and get their consent. The next forenoon I happened to meet Mr. Hubbard and asked him if Dr. Scott had yet seen him to propose his change in the committee agreement of the night before. He said, "No, what is it?" I told him what it was, and said to Mr. Hubbard that, in my judgment, the whole plan was a rotten scheme to spend public money uselessly for private ends and make a place for an incompetent teacher, who had been dropped. The members of those two committees will recall how he drove to each one of you that day and urged you to consent to his scheme of putting in the teacher whom he had been ashamed to mention the night before. No one of you seemed willing to consent, so he called the two committees together here again that same evening. You then questioned me in Dr. Scott's presence, and I gave you the facts as I saw them. You then, in spite of his protests, asked me to arrange the crowded schools by transfers and consolidation, and empratically annulled the piece of corrupt private jobbery into which you had been unwittingly drawn. Dr. Scott, at that time, again came to this building and in the hallways, within hearing of my assistants in this office threatened me and members of this board in loud and angry tones, saying that he would get even with all of us, that he would go into every ward in this city at the coming spring election and see that every outgoing member was supplanted by a man from a secret society to which he belonged.

Gentlemen of the board of education, for five months, though annoyed and hampered in the performance of my duties beyond measure, I have remained silent. Not until this man began to assail some of the best teachers of this city and strike at the discipline of our schools; not until he rose in your presence and arraigned me as a "liar" and guilty of brutality did I feel that longer forbearance had ceased to be a virtue. I have presented you now the cold unvarnished truth, absolutely exact in every detail, as nearly as memory can reproduce it and as nearly as language can express it, and I leave it for you and the public to determine to whom the vile characteristics of "lying" and "brutality" most appropriately belong. Now, gentlemen, in view of the facts I have laid before you under oath, I ask protection, not for myself, but for the cause of youthful education in this city, a cause too dear and too sacred to be endangered by the vote and the efforts of a man without a conscience.

of teachers whose reputations and scholarship are their only capital and who richly deserve your most loyal sympathy and support. I ask it for the applicants who come to you for positions and whose claims should be tested, not by their religion or their nationality, but by their character and their intelligence. And, lastly, I ask your support and protection for the board of examiners appointed by you, that this board may retain its honor inviolate and issue its certificates unwarped and unbiased by the meddlesome and corrupt demands of any man.

State of Ohio, Lucas county, ss: Harvey W. Compton, being first duly sworn, says that the facts stated in the foregoing communication are true.

HARVEY W. COMPTON.

Subscribed in the presence and sworn to before me this 5th day of November, 1892.

GEO. B. BOONE,
Notary Public, Lucas county, O.

Prof. Huntchinson's Statement.—Mr. Compton then followed with this statement from Assistant Superintendent N. E. Hutchinson:

Toledo, O., Oct. 31, 1892.

Mr. H. W. Compton, Superintendent of Schools:

Dear Sir: In reply to yours of the 28th I report the following conversation with Dr. Scott, which occurred on the 8th of September at his residence.

I said to him, "How does the appointment of Miss Sugarman please you?" He replied, "That's the worst dose I ever got. Kohn is to blame for that. I'll get even with him."

He then related to me how he happened to miss the meeting, explaining the nature of the medical case that detained him and the fee he received for attending it. After this he continued, "But I won't have her there. She's got to go." "But," I interposed, "she is there. How are you going to help yourself?"

"Make her fail," he replied. "You must make her fail." "But," I said again, "she may succeed." "Well," he replied, ain't got a certificate yet. Do you know whether Compton has looked over her papers yet?" I said I thought not, that there had not been time enough since the examination. He then continued, "I want Compton to mark her down. If he'll let me take the papers, I'll fix her. I must see Compton again about that."

I met Dr. Scott on two or three other occasions when he said substantially the same things. Between times you will remember telling me of Dr. Scott's propositions to you. Respectfully,

N. E. HUTCHINSON.

The affidavits were submitted to the following committee for consideration: Zirwas, Kohn, Shuck, Schlingman and Eversman.

Harsh purgative remedies are fast giving way to the gentle action and mild effects of Carter's Little Liver Pills. If you try them, they will certainly please you.

BURIED IN TOLEDO.

Curtice, O., Nov. 8.—(Special)—The funeral of little Chas. Parnell Hayes, son of Michael and Elizabeth Hayes, formerly of Oak Harbor, O., took place yesterday. The funeral was largely attended by friends and relatives of Mrs. Hayes from Toledo. The burial took place in St. Mary's cemetery in Toledo.

GOING DOWN THE HILL.

Old Age Creeping on Shows Itself in Lack-Lustre Eyes and Trembling Hands—Many Who Are Old in Years are Vigorous and Healthy—How Such a Condition may be Encompassed by All.

How many elderly men and women we see who plainly show they are "going down the hill." The trembling hand, the uncertain step, the lack of brightness in the eye, the shrunken features, all indicate that life is not at high tide, that the strength and vital forces are not what they were, and in fact, that they are going down the hill. This, of course, is to be expected, for when one reaches later years, physical troubles are sure to come, but how many elderly people we see are healthy, happy and comparatively vigorous. They always seem cheerful, bright, contented. Why should not all be equally fortunate? It certainly is possible. Every elderly man and woman needs to gently assist nature, all the while needs to take some pure stimulant regularly. Every doctor in the land admits this, and its common sense must be manifest to all. It should not be understood, however, that any ordinary stimulant would be recommended. It must be something pure, powerful, health-giving and strength-imparting. Such a stimulant can be found only in Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. It is the only medicinal whiskey in the market. Its wonderful popularity is due entirely to its power and what it has accomplished. Any elderly man or woman through its use may certainly preserve the health, and may reasonably expect to prolong the life. Do not be induced, however, to try any inferior article or any which the druggist or grocer may seek to put in its place. There is nothing which can accomplish the same object.

SILAS WIGGINS WRITES.

Muscel Shoals Meeting House,
Obion Co., Ky., Oct. 22, '92.

Mr. Editor:

Dear Sir—I take my pen in hand to tell you we are all well and when you get this hope you will be enjoying the same great blessing.

I suppose you looked for a letter from me before you got this, but I been bordin with a widder ever since I been here and Saturday she killed her hoggs and she allowed as I owed her for some boardin I might help. Now, Mr. Editor, I don't like to help kill hoggs. It's a kind of greesey bizness and auful hard on your hands. I wouddent have done it, but somehow or other when I objected and the widder said she thought I better, and she rolled the white of her eye onto me, I sorta had a presentiment as it twere, that I had better do it, and I done it, and I want to tell you rite here that working under a Bossie widder at a hogg killin aint anything like runnin a republican mass meeting or speakin on Tarif or holdin office. I aint surprised she's a widder, there aint no man livin in this United States could live with her, but she aint hurtin on that account. She don't knede a man. She can run this place and can run lots more things if she wanted to. She could run the campaign and the world's Fair in her spare time, and I wish she had the job, for because I owe her a small bill of boardin shea's a runnin me now, and it interferes with my other important bizness; but the campaign money aint come yet, and I can't pay her off, so I have to work to keep her sorta satisfied. I have a presentiment it would be dangerous to talk about leavin befor I paid up. Talk about yer out west cyclone of the kick of an armey mule or a wild-cat with its back up, they aint nothin to compare with the widder Wiggels, and people gets her name and mine mixed up because they ar so much alike that its awful imbarison sometimes.

But I guess I better tell you what a hogg killin in Kentucky means. Its somethin like a log rollin or a corn shuckin, ware, accordin to scripture, they "help one another"—call it swapin work. When a Farmer gets ready to kill hoggs he sends word around and his neighbors all come on a certain day and then on another day he goes and helps them back, and so on. When they kill hoggs they have a big dinner on spare ribs, backbones fried in grease, and they all eat like they was trying to get enough to last till next year, then they hold it down with moonshine whiskey that's enough to turn the stomach of a Russan Jew. Unfortunately for the widder there was a democrat meetin down at the mill on Eagle creek, and everybody went to it except Mr. Mortimer Gop, who is a good man and dont get mad and sware, and Mr. Pornick George, who can eat more spare rib and drink more whiskey and do less work then any democrat or human bein in this county. He dont know any more about democracy then a Billy-Goat does about New Jerusalem. You cant trust him no further than he can see a drink of whisky or a plug of Black tobacco. But I must Revert to tellin you how its done.

You have a lot of kettles and heat them full of boilin hot water. You take an old whiskey barral and you dig a hole in the ground and set the barral end ways sorta half unended. You knock the top end out and fill the barral full of hot water out of the kittles. Then you take an old meat ax and get over in the pen and mud and try to get a hogg to stand still while you slip up behind him and knock him in the head (this is hard to do). When you get him knocked out you take a big butcher knife and cut his throat and stick the knife down his throat as far as you can and turn his hind leggs up hill so his head will be down hill to make him bleed good. then you put him in the barral of hot water and skald him and keep a slidin him or her (there aint no diferance between he and she hoggs) up and down in the barral till there skalded good—then everybody gets arround that hogg and goes to pullin hair off like forty Hackmen after one passenger—but if you dont get yer water jest rite, and yer dont slide the hog up and down in the barral jest rite, and yer don't take him out jest the rite time—then the hair on the hogg gits set, and it wont come off, and it spoils the meat and makes more trouble than a svclone at a circus. everybody gets mad and blames everybody els. You get yer hands skalded in the barral and yer feet froze in the mud, and it makes everybody feel mean, its wours than a stump speakin bustin up in a row. Now I told the widder Wiggles I didn't know anything about Hogg killin bizness and tried to get it put off to some other day, but she was mad and allowed she was runnin her bizness and no fool man could tell her how to do it. So there wernt anything to do but do jest as she said. Well, you see Mr. Mortimer Gop started in and he is so fat he cant pick up anything or put down anything, but he's such a good man you cant say anything about it. Mr. Pornick George took in so much whiskey to hold down the spar rib that he got tangled up in the mud and the next thing we knowed we had a Hogg Sot. Then the widder got so tareing mad she dident know what she was a doin. She grabbed Mr. Mortimer Gop by his suspenders to pul him out of her way and busted both the buttons off his pants, and the only good man that knew anything about the hul bizness had to hold on to his pants and go home cause he cudent work with any safty with both suspenders busted. I thought my time had about come and the widder would finish me with the butcher knife. Jest then two of our American citizens of African desent heard the fus and come to see what was the matter and after a lot of talking and some whiskey, they sharpened up the knives on the grindstone and them fellers went at the bizness and shaved the sot hair off that hogg like shearin a sheap. this helped us out of a pile of trouble and jest as we finished up Jessie Wire the postmaster said there was a letter fur me at the postofice and he allowed he'd bring it over. Well now I was tickled, fur I felt sarten these colored gentlemen was good Republicans and I knowed that letter was from the chairman of the Republican national comittie and would show them my standen in our grand old party. so after Jessie Wire and the widder took Mr. Pornick George to the house I fixed a board on one end of the barral and the other end on a rock to make a kind of bench. I sat down to rest and talk a little politics to my colored republican friends. I told them to drink the balance of that whiskey while I red my letter. it was from Mr. Cartar and it had two ten dollar bills in it which Mr. Cartar said was all he could spare now, as they had to use so much money in New York and Indiana on account of big expenses to hire United States marshals to protect the republicans so they could vote. I red this part of the letter to my two friends and told them who I was and that I was goin to the house and settle up with the widder Wiggles and tell her mighty straight that thar was her money and that she was done a runnin me and that I wasent arround in a greesey hogg killin bizness to pay bordin bills, and that spare ribbs and moonshine whiskey dident catch me. Now, Mr. Editor, that's the last thing I remember, for one of them niggars grabed my letter and them two ten dollar bills while the other one tuck hold of the end of the board and kinda slid me into the barral head downwards, and the next thing I knowed my mouth was full of dirty water and hogg's hair and I coudent hollar and my head down in the bottom and my feet sticken out the top. I would a been gone sure, but somhow the barral fell over and I got out and after I got some of the hogg's hair out of my mouth and everything out of my stomach I begin to see the cussed niggars had robed me and nearly killed me to boot. I cant tell you what the widder said and is still a sayin, but I will tell you some other time. I cant do it now, Ime out of fix. Everything arround here is out of fix, and Mr. Carter is expectin to here from me before election, and I aint wrote him because I hate to tell him, it's sure to hurt my standin in the party. So I thought I'd tell you all about it and you might help me out. if you will lle do as much fer you when you get in the same fix.

Yours truly,
SILAS WIGGINS.

CATSKILL, N. Y.

DR. DAVID KENNEDY, Rondout, N. Y.

MY DEAR SIR:—

"I first used Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, made at Rondout, N. Y., through the advice of a prominent citizen of Catskill, N. Y. I was very sick at the time with Liver and Kidney trouble; was very much run down. I had three different doctors attending me, but continued to grow worse. I had a talk with this gentleman, in which he described his symptoms, when he was sick, and I found they were similar to mine; I told him so, and remarked, "if that medicine has done so much for you, it ought to help me." So he got a bottle for me, and I commenced "experimenting" on myself. I use the word "experiment" because I think that is all most of the Doctors do. I quit taking the Doctor's medicine when I commenced "Favorite Remedy" but did not apprise him of the fact. The result was that before half the bottle was used I felt a change. Next time the Doctor called he observed it, and said:—"There is a Change—you are better," I said I was and he again prescribed for me and was to return in a few days. When he did he made the remark that I looked "so much better," and said he would have me on my feet in a short time. I then showed him the medicine I was using in place of his, and it made him feel very "sore." Of course he claimed it was his medicine that helped me, and that I would be glad to call on him again for help, but I have not done so yet. I can also add, that there have been instances where my great faith in the "Favorite Remedy" prompted me to give a whole bottle to persons to poor too buy it.

"I take summer boarders from New York City and Brooklyn, and I have recommended it to several of them, and I have yet to hear from the one that has not been benefited from its use.

Yours respectfully,
JOS. McGIFFERT.

PROCLAMATION.

Mayor's Office, Toledo, Ohio.

WHEREAS, It is declared unlawful by the laws of the State of Ohio for any person to sell or give away any spirituous, vinous or malt liquors on any election day, and also is declared unlawful for any person being the keeper of a place where such liquors are habitually sold and drank, to fail to keep the same closed on any election day held under or by virtue of the constitution and laws of said state under penalty of fine and imprisonment, and

WHEREAS, The 8th day of November, A. D. 1892, is such election day as aforesaid, now therefore, I, V. J. Emmick, Mayor of the City of Toledo, as required by law, do hereby give public notice to all concerned of the enactment and provisions of said laws, and that all violations of the same will subject the offender to punishment.

Given under my hand and seal of office this 5th day of November, A. D. 1892.

V. J. EMMICK,
Mayor of the City of Toledo.

NOTICE.

THE VOTERS OUT TO-DAY

The early scenes were busy ones. Long lines of voters waited anxiously and discussed in animated tones the virtues of their respective candidates. In the business districts the great majority of houses were closed and nearly all public offices were also shut up for the day.

The voters came early to the polls and in several election districts visited it was said that not a single ballot was lost through ignorance of the new system. At Tammany hall the clans began to gather before the sun's rays had struck the famous building.

WEST VIRGINIA.

The Boys Are Fixing Up for Some Trouble.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 8.—Reports from all portions of the state to-day show that the voting is proceeding quietly and an enormous vote is being polled. A large force of deputy marshals is at the polls in Mercer and McDowell counties, and the democratic sheriffs are swearing in deputy sheriffs.

This is the negro mining region and already apprehension is felt that there will be a conflict.

In this city there is a large amount of scratching.

The chairmen of both parties announce that they stand by their previous claims. Chairman Chilton predicts a democratic majority of 5,000 and Mr. Dawson, a republican majority of 3,000.

The republicans will probably gain one or two members of the legislature in this county.

MASSACHUSETTS.

A Heavy Vote Is Being Polled in the Bay State

Boston, Nov. 8.—The Globe has dispatches from neighboring towns reporing a heavy vote, especially during the first hour of the contest. In the city of Somerville at least twice as many ballots were cast beeween 7 and 8 o'clock as in the state election in the same time last year. In the city of Woburn, in wards One and Two, fully one-third of the vote had been cast at 8 o'clock. A large number of workingmen voted early in the city of Gloucester. At Norwood, a large vote is being polled.

BUFFALO.

Eight Democratic Votes Taken Away From the Polls.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 8.—The first arrests of the day were made in the Fifth district of the Nineteenth ward, where eight men were gathered in by United States marshals, for illegal registration, before they had an opportunity to vote.

No interference was offered to their arrest. They were taken before Commissioner Hirschbeck, pleaded not guilty, and'b ail in $1,000 each was furnished.

This is a strong democratic ward and the republicans charge that a large amount of illegal registration has taken place in it and are on the lookout for frauds. Some trouble is feared there before the polls close.

Robert Kilcourse, a voter, dropped dead in the Fifth district of this ward shortly after 8 o'clock. He had just reached the door of the booth when he threw up his hands and fell to the ground. When picked up he was a corpse. His death resulted from heart disease.

SENT THEM HOME.

Republican Repeaters Driven Out of a State.

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 8.—A gang of republicans sent from Baltimore to fraudulently vote in this city, by a republican Washington lawyer acting for Wilmington parties, was met by detectives and sent whence they came.

The Australian ballot system was inaugurated. A large early vote was polled. No disturbances reported.

PRESIDENT HARRISON.

The Circumstances Make To-Day a Very Sad One.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 8.—In the deep shadow of the greatest grief that can come to man Benjamin Harrison awaits the verdict of the country upon his four years of administration of the highest office in the gift of the American people.

It is as an American rather than as a man that the president looks upon the contest in progress to-day. As a loyal republican he is anxious that victory should abide with his party, as a man personal success will bring to him very little of cheer or enthusiasm. In fact there are those officially close to him who say that since the sad experiences which he has been called upon to undergo during the past few weeks life in the white house has for him lost its charm, and were it not for the fact that, like a patriot, he places party and country above personal desires and feeling, he would gladly relinquish the reins of power and retire to private life.

A favorable verdict to-day by the jury of the nation upon his conduct of its affairs would naturally be to him a source of satisfaction, but that satisfaction would have been of immeasurably more value could it have been shared by the partner of his life's joys and sorrows, the faithful helpmate through years of poverty to years of fame, but whose mortal remains, in the inscrutable wisdom of Providence, have, within a few days, been laid to rest almost within the shadow of the homestead which she left to become the first lady of the land. "Mr. Harrison will be re-elected, for he has been a good president," were the simple, touching words of faith uttered by the wife and mother when on her death-bed, and the utterance may be proven to-day to have been prophetic.

CINCINNATI.

A. P. A.'s Voting the Democratic Ticket.

Cincinnati, Nov. 8.—The election is progressing quietly. The indications are that a full vote will be polled. The only important feature is the fight for congressman in the Second district. Bellamy Storrs is a candidate for re-election on the republican ticket. The Catholic Telegraph, of which Father Mackey is editor, has supported him throughout the campaign and for that reason he is being scratched for Bowler, the democratic candidate. The outcome of this particular contest is hard to predict.

MINNEAPOLIS.

A Large Vote Was Polled Early in the Day.

Minneapolis, Nov. 8.—Everything is quiet and a heavy vote is being polled in this city. Both parties, on account of a heavy registration, made a special effort to get out a large vote early and succeeded. The republicans are claiming that a large vote is in their favor, but it is too early to figure on results.

DETROIT.

Everything Favorable to the Democrats in Michigan.

Detroit, Nov. 8.—In this city 50,000 voters were registered. A canvass at 9 o'clock this morning showed an average of one-fourth of the vote already cast, with indications of straight voting by both parties.

A bitter quarrel on religious grounds promises to bring out a heavy vote and to materially assist the democratic ticket.

Reports from the state are meager as yet. The democratic managers claim that Morse, for governor, will be elected by 5,000.

The republicans concede a close vote on the state ticket.

Chipman, democratic candidate for congress, in the first district, may be defeated, though his supporters claim he will not run below 500 majority.

Prospects favor the election of a democratic and people's party legislature, fusion in 47 districts on legislative candidates furnishing the basis of democratic confidence.

Congressman Gorman was badly injured at Jackson this morning while taking a train home to vote. Being a one-armed man he could not catch the platform rail readily, missed it and was thrown against the depot gates. It is not known whether his injuries will prove serious.

of the genuine imported Johann Hoff's Malt Extract as a tonic nutritive, has caused a crowd of fraudulent imitators to come into the market. Beware of them! The genuine has the signature of "Johann Hoff" on the neck of every bottle. Elsner & Mendelson Co., Agents, New York. For Coughs and Colds use the Malt Extract hot at bedtime and the genuine Johann Hoff's Malt Bonbons during the day. A pleasant and active remedy.

A NEW MOVE.

South Dakota Democrats Advised to Desert the National Nominees.

Yankton, S. D., Nov. 8.—Tremendous excitement was occasioned here in political circles upon the announcement that the democratic state central committee had passed the following resolutions addressed to the democratic voters of South Dakota:

Resolved, That it is the sense of the democratic state committee that the democratic voters of South Dakota cast their votes for the Weaver electoral ticket and thereby aid in electing our standard-bearers, Grover Cleveland and Adlai Stevenson, and this commitee requests the hearty co-operation of every democrat in this state to accomplish this; and,

Resolved, further, That all democrats of South Dakota should stand loyally by their congressional and state tickets and thereby materially advance their party's permanent welfare in this state.

These resolutions mean the defeat of the Harrison electors in South Dakota by from 5,000 to 12,000. The legislature will also go to the fusionists.

TO HEAR THE NEWS.

The President Will Have Wires Running As Usual Into the White House.

Washington, Nov. 8.—After the business of the day is over, when prognostication and speculation are at rest, and the actual returns begin to come in, the president will have the company of Secretary John W. Foster and Attorney General Miller and possibly one or two personal friends, and together they will sit up and read the returns until it is time to retire or until some tangible result is in sight. No one else will be present, and on this occasion, contrary to his usual custom, the president will deny himself to the members of the press ,to whom he has uniformly extended a courteous invitation to be present. The reason for this departure is obviously attributed to his recent bereavement and the desire to avoid a public manifestation of his feelings.

People who saw the president to-day say that if he feels any anxiety he does not show it. He is cool and collected and betrays no sign of worry.

WATCHING GROVER.

Much Interest to See Him Cast His Vote.

Taken all in all the opening hours of the day were auspicious and gave promise of much excitement and earnest work throughout the day by the party men.

Although the police have made elaborate arrangements to meet any disturbance that may arise during the day, they expressed the belief that the election would pass off peaceably. Superintendent Byrnes was in receipt of news from all election districts as early as 10 o'clock, and he said the reports showed "Sunday-like quietness."

Police headquarters is swarming with officers this morning. No person can recall an election day when so many policemen were collected about the building. They were ready to enforce order.

In Brooklyn the election is passing off quietly. The early vote was unusually large, and a big vote is expected.

On Saten Island everything was moving smoothly and a big vote is being polled.

The great center of interest of the uptown polling places was at 876 Sixth avenue, for it was there that ex-President Grover Cleveland was to cast his ballot. A large crowd surrounded the place all morning waiting to get a glimpse of the democratic candidate.

It was just 10:25 o'clock when Mr. Cleveland left his residence at 12 West Fifty-first street. He was accompanied by George N. Parker, of the democratic national committee and by his butler.

They walked to the polling place.

When Sixth avenue was reached the crowd that surrounded the polling place was so large that a policeman had to clear a passage for the distinguished party.

The ex-president entered the store and after the usual formalities cast his vote.

INDIANA.

A Big Vote Getting Into the Foxes Early.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 8.—Election day in President Harrison's home dawned cold and bright. There was not a cloud to be seen this forenoon, and except that the air was raw, better election weather was never supplied to a zealous people.

Early in the day the challengers and outside watchers had rather a chilly time of it, but they were doubtless sustained by the warmth of their devotion to their work.

Instructions to "vote early" were generally observed. At every polling place in the earlier parts of the day voters were in line waiting for a chance to get into the booths. At some precincts, on the north side especially, twenty to thirty men were in line, shivering in the cold and denouncing election officers for alleged incompetency.

The chief source of complaint was that the polling places did not open at 6 o'clock as required by law. In some instances the polls did not open till 7 o'clock and in other places the polls were not open at 8:30. As the balloting progressed it became evident that the vote would be unprecendented. Probably the forenoon vote was never so heavy.

Both sides were at work in dead earnest. The small size of the precincts enabled the voters to record their preferences rapidly and to recover time lost in opening. Up to 11 o'clock but one arrest had been made. At 11 o'clock the indications are that more than half of the vote will have been cast by noon.

SENATOR QUAY.

He Only Knows What He Has Been Told.

Pittsburg, Nov. 8.—Senator Quay returned from Philadelphia this morning on his way to Beaver to vote. While at the Union station he said to a United Press reporter: "I am informed that President Harrison will be re-elected and that he will carry New Yrok. The republican leaders are confident of this result. State Chairman Reeder tells me that Pennsylvania will give 70,000 majority for Harrison. He is confident of the legislature and does not anticipate a slump in any quarter."

FINDLAY FINDINGS.

Findlay, O., Nov. 8.—About 5,000 votes will be polled in this city to-day.

Henry Myers, residing on East Front street, made an unsuccessful attempt to shoot his wife.

Bud Rose, an oil pumper, was seriously burned about the face and head yesterday.

Four new churches at present building in this city.

The entire outfit of household furniture of the Hotel Marvin is to be sold on the 18th inst. by Receiver Platt.

Big Four railroad will commence work in a few days on a large new freight depot to replace the old structure recently burned down.

The employes of the Briggs rolling mill have raised over $100 for Edward Smith, a follow employe who was injured a few days ago.

W. H. Mitchell has sold his weekly, the Deshler Flag, to Sidney Bennett, who will conduct the business in the future.

Weather.

Zanesville, O., Nov. 8.—Weather cool. Unusually large vote polled this morning. Very quiet around the polling places. Both parties seem to be getting in their full vote.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 8.—Weather clear and cool.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 8.—Weather fine. A full vote coming out and long lines are noticeable at each voting precinct.

KINGS AT THE TABLE.

Favorite Dishes Served to the Different Rulers Throughout Europe.

The delicacies upon the tables of the crowned heads of Europe have always exercised a potent charm upon the imaginations of those who have never sat at their sides. But the pictures of the "Fleshpots of Egypt," conjured up by the fancy, often widely differ from the reality. Simplicity reigns at many courts.

Among all the European rulers, says a German exchange, the table of the emperor of Austria, although he himself is extremely temperate in eating and drinking, is the richest and best served.

King Humbert of Italy, however, might almost be called a vegetarian, as he lives almost entirely upon fruit and vegetables. He drinks only Bordeaux wine mixed with water. But the most temperate of all earth's potentates is Pope Leo XIII.

His breakfast, which he is accustomed to eat after mass, consists of coffee and milk alone. At noon the aged ruler of the church eats two eggs, a small piece of chicken, as a rule, and some fruit. He drinks at the same time a glass of Bordeaux. On fast days fish and maccaroni are substituted for the chicken.

From dinner time till bedtime the pope takes no nourishment with the exception of a bit of bread, dipped in milk. A better eater is the emperor of Russia. Even at breakfast, tea, eggs, ham and beef must be placed on his table. At luncheon, which is eaten about 11 o'clock, the czar takes bouillon with egg, mutton chops and cold game. As a rule at this meal he drinks three cups of strong coffee.

At 2 o'clock he eats a dish of milk and rice. Dinner is served at 6 o'clock. It is a hearty meal, after the French pattern. Before going to bed he stills the pangs of hunger with tea and coffee.

Queen Victoria prefers Scotch dishes, and the queen regent of Spain remains true to the Austrian cooking, being especially fond of Vienna bread. Emperor William II. is a heavy eater. He prefers nourishing dishes, however, to the refined examples of the cook's art. After the warming bath he is served with an English breakfast, consisting of tea, bread, eggs in some form, cotelette, beefsteak, etc.

His lunch, usually eaten alone, is also rich. He takes at this time soup, meat, vegetables, roast and sweets. Dinner is announced at 5 o'clock. At this meal the empress and chance guests help the emperor in whiling away the time. It does not consist usually of more dishes than the other meals, but great care is taken in selecting them.

The empress often makes up the bill of fare herself, and tries to choose the favorite dishes of her husband. If the emperor has taken much exercise during the day a light meal is eaten late at night. Tea and cold meats at least are always ready.

His majesty is extremely fond of "bowle" or punch, seldom taking beer. His favorite wines are Mosel and Rhine wines.

GROUND FOR REFUSAL.

"You must stop that," said the guardian of a waiting room to a man who was puffing at a cigar.

"Stop what?" asked the man, as he removed the cigar from his mouth.

"Smoking."

"Why?" was the next question, as the smoker replaced the burning weed.

"It's against the rules."

"O, I guess not."

"Yes, it is. Don't you see that placard hanging against the wall, which says: 'No Smoking?'"

"I see it, of course. I'm not blind. But that is my authority for refusing to quit

"You authority?"

"Yes."

"I don't understand you."

"That rule is suspended against the wall, isn't it?"

"It is."

"Very well. No one expects a suspended rule to be obeyed."

The guardian of the waiting room went to consult the station master about this new interpretation, while the smoker thought he would go on the platform to see how late his train was.—Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph.

Bolto, the opera liberetto writer, having been requested to contribute to an album, inscribed this sentence on the page: "Ebro o Otel, ma Amleto e orbe" (Drunken is Othello, but Hamlet is mad). The chief point of interest about it apparently is that it spells the same whether you read it forward or backward.

CERTAIN ADVERTISEMENTS FROM TRADE RIVALS who fear the phenomenal success of

Van Houten's Cocoa

in America, contain insinuations against it, and appeal to the authority of

Dr. SYDNEY RINGER, Prof. of Medicine at University College, London, Author of the Standard "Handbook of Therapeutics," who actually writes as follows:—"From the careful analysis of Prof. Attfield and others I am satisfied that Messrs. Van Houten's Cocoa is in no way injurious to health, and that it is decidedly more nutritio us than other Cocoas. — It is certainly "Pure" and highly digestible. — The quotations in certain advertisements from my book on Therapeutics are quite misleading, and cannot possibly apply to Van Houten's Cocoa." — The false reference to Van Houten's Cocoa is thus effectually repelled, and the very authority cited to injure it, has thereby been prompted to give it a very handsome testimonial.

NOTICE.

John Mattoon of Drain, Oregon; John Mattoon, executor of the will of Rebecca Sibley, deceased, of Drain Oregon; the unknown heirs and devisees of Oliver Johnson, deceased; the unknown heirs and devisees of Rebecca Sibley, deceased, and Avery Smith and William Howe, whose place of residence is unknown, are hereby notified that on the fifth day of November, 1892, Eleazar N. Smith, as plaintiff, filed against them as defendants, in the clerk's office in the court of common pleas of Lucas county, Ohio, his petition alleging that he is the owner in fee simple, has the legal title to and is in actual possession of the northeast quarter (1-4) of the southeast quarter (1-4), and the east half (1-2) and the north three-fourths (3-4) of the west half (1-2) of the northeast quarter (1-4), all in section twenty-one (21), town nine (9) south, range seven (7) east, containing one hundred and eighty (180) acres of land, more or less, situate in Washington township, Lucas county, Ohio.

The said defendants appear of record and claim to have an interest in said real estate; that in fact said defendants or either of them have no interest in said real estate, and said petition prays that the defendants may be decreed to have no interest in said real estate and be forever barred of claiming any interest therein, and that plaintiff may be quieted in his title to said real estate as against said defendants.

Said defendants are required to file their answer to said action which is still pending on or before the 31st day of December, 1892 or be forever barred of any interest in said lands.

ELEAZAR N. SMITH.
By Elmer E. Davis, his Attorney.

NAMES OF COINS.

More or Less Authentic Stories About the Origin of Some of Them.

The florin, one of the most famous of modern coins, originated in Florence. Some say that it gave the name to the city, while others assert that it was first so called because it had on it a fleur de lis, from the Italian florone or "flower," for the same reason that an English silver piece is called a "crown," or certain gold pieces in France indifferently a "Napoleon" or "Louis," or $10 gold pieces in America an "eagle."

For several hundred years, and down to a comparatively recent date, according to Notes and Queries, money was coined at from 25 to 30 different cities in France that had inherited the privilege. Now all French money is coined at the Paris mint.

Few French gold pieces are, however, in circulation, except those bearing the head of Napoleon III., and silver pieces of the same coinage are almost as common. French silver coins wear admirably, and pieces of the reign of Charles X., Louis XVIII. and Napoleon I. are very common.

The standard coins on the continent are—in France the franc, in Spain the peseta, in Italy the lira, in Holland and Austria the florin, in Germany the mark, in Russia the ruble.

Belgium and Switzerland use the French name for the piece of 20 sous. Each of these pieces is, like the American dollar, divided into 100 parts, called kopeck in Russia, pfennig in Germany, kreutzer in Austria, cent in Holland, and in Italy, France and Spain by the word meaning hundredth.

The word shilling is of German derivation, like penny, which comes from the German "pfennig." The word "crown" comes from the image placed on the coin. The name franc was given by King John, who first coined these pieces in 1360.

They bore the motto "Le Roi Frank" (King of the Franks) and were of two kinds, one representing the king on horseback, the other on foot.

The franc was formerly also called the livre (pound), though the connection with any special weight is not evident. The name of the German coin, mark, meaning a weight of eight ounces, was formerly in general use in Europe.

The name of the Italian coin that corresponds with the franc (lira) also means pound. The coins in present use in Spain have their names from other sources. The piece which corresponds with the American dollar is called escuda (shield).

"Peseta," the name of the small coin representing the monetary standard, means simply "little piece." "Ruble" is from the word meaning "to cut," and was so called because originally the coin was made with an ornamental edge.

Few persons have ever troubled themselves to think of the derivation of the word dollar. It is from the German thal (valley) and came into use in this way some 300 years ago. There is a little silver mining city or district in northern Bohemia called Joachimsthal, or Joachim's valley.

The reigning duke of the village authorized this city in the sixteenth century to coin a silver piece which was called Joachimthaler." The word "Joachim" was soon dropped, and the word "thaler" only retained.

The piece went into general use in Germany and Denmark, where the orthography was changed to "daler," whence it came into English, and was adopted by the Americans with still further changes in the spelling. The Mexican dollar is generally called "paisire" in France, and the name is sometimes applied to the United States dollar.

The appellation is incorrect in either case, for the word paister or paistre has for the last 50 years been only applied with correctness to a small silver coin used in Turkey or Egypt, which is worth from 5 to 8 cents.

MOTHERS! MOTHERS!

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over fifty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain; cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

THE GREAT AMAZON RIVER.

With its affluents this river furnishes more than 50,000 miles of navigable water. Its eight principal tributaries are each over 1,000 miles long and more than 350 other branches unite to form its main stream. The largest ship that was ever built could sail straight up from its mouth 1,000 miles, while hundreds and hundreds of miles along its lower course are lateral channels, technically called igarapes (canoe paths), in which boats may travel without ever entering the main stream—the bayous of the lower Mississippi valley duplicated on a greatly enlarged scale. The Amazon basin is more than three times as large as that of the Mississippi, including a vast untrodden forest fully 1,500 miles long by 1,000 miles broad, whose edges only have been explored by a few adventurous rubber hunters and seekers after tortoise shell, wood, mahoany and other valuable timbers. At its mouth the river is 180 miles from shore to shore and 320 feet deep; at Surtaren, the most important interior city of Brazil, it is ten miles wide; away off on the Brazilian frontier it is seventy feet deep, and 2,300 miles above the sea it is almost a mile across.—Fanny B. Ward.

If you once try Carter's Little Liver Pills for sick headache, biliousness or constipation, you will never be without them. They are purely vegetable; small and easy to take. Don't forget this.

THE CONQUESTS OF MODERN SCIENCE.

Surely I have established my thesis that dirt is only matter in a wrong place. Chemistry, like a thrifty housewife, economizes every scrap. The horse-shoe nails dropped in the streets are carefully collected, and reappear as swords and guns. The main ingredient of the ink with which I now write was probably once the broken hoop of an old beer barrel. The chippings of the traveling tinker are mixed with the parings of horses' hoofs and the worst kinds of woollen rags, and these are worked up into an exquisite blue dye, which graces the dress of courtly dames. The dregs of port wine, carefully decanted by the toper, are taken in the morning as a seidlitz powder, to remove the effect of the debauch. The offal of the streets and the wastings of coal gas reappear carefully preserved in the lady's smelling bottle, or are used by her to flavo blanc manges for her friends. All this thrift of material is an imitation of the economy of nature, which allows no waste. Everything has its destined place in the process of the universe, in which there is not a blade of grass or even a microbe too much, if we possessed the knowledge to apply them to their fitting purpose.—From "Waste Products Made Useful," by Lord Playfair, in North American Review for November.

Mexican flint knives were made so sharp that they could be used for trimming hair.

TWO SUCCESSFUL GIRLS.

Two American girls who are studying art to good advantage in Rome, whose work will be seen at the exposition, are Luella Varney and Adelaide Johnson. Miss Varney has been at work only seven or eight years, but her marble and bronze are widely known, and are seen in public halls, in cathedrals and in beautiful homes. Among her important works are a bronze of Bishop Ralph in full canonicals; and exquisite figure of "Truth," which forms the crowning figure of a great monument and the busts of Miss Anthony and Julia Ward Howe, which are to be at the exposition. Miss Johnson is a St. Louis girl, who has conquered fate with the determination of a Napoleon. Once her funds, accumulated by hard toil, were stolen just as she was about to begin study in marble. Again, having by heroic effort earned sufficient means to pursue her studies, she met with an accident which confined her to the bed for several months and exhausted her means. At last, almost destitute of money and walking only with the aid of a crutch and cane, she entered the imperial city, the Mecca of every artistic soul—Rome. However, from the time of her completion of her first Roman work, busts of General and Mrs. Logan, Miss Johnson has never lacked patrons. Her studio is in Washington, but she is now in Rome with six skilled men at work on her marbles executing in flawless Carrara busts of Elizabeth Cady Stanton and of Lucretia Mott. These are destined primarily for the Columbus exposition and later are destined—the first busts of American women to adorn its halls—for the capitol at Washington.—New York Sun.

OLD WAR SHIPS.

The Humble Fate to Which Even the Proudest Man-of-War Must Eventually Come.

The outcry which has been raised against the destruction of Nelson's old flagship, the Foudroyant, makes it interesting to trace the end of other famous vessels. The Shannon, which fought and took prize the Chesapeake in 1813, was broken up at Chatham, parts of her hull being sold at a fancy price.

Sir Francis Drake's Golden Hind came to a similar end at Deptford, a chair made out of her timbers being one of the treasures of Oxford university.

The Resolute, which went in search of Sir John Franklin, and, after being abandoned in an icy waste, was picked up by an American whaler, and returned refitted by the United States government to this country, was moored in the Medway for some years afterward, but ultimately taken into dock and pulled to pieces, a suit of furniture fashioned from her oaken timbers being sent as a memento to the American president.

The Sovereign of the Seas, the first British three-decker, built in the time of Charles I., "to the great glory of the English nation, and not to be paralleled in the whole Christian world," was accidentally destroyed by fire at Chatham, after long service.

The old wooden wall, President, is now a drill ship for the men of the royal naval reserve, and is moored in the southwest India docks; and the Queen and the Goliath were sold to a Vauxhall shipbroker, the entrance to whose yard is still adorned with their huge figureheads.

Of Captain Cook's Endeavor not a trace is left, though several of the scientific instruments have been preserved. Nor is there any trace of the Victoria, which made the first voyage around the world.

All that remains of the Bucentaur, the gorgeous two-decked gondola which so proudly carried the haughty doge in the days of the Venetian republic, is one of her masts; while the Betsey Caius, which carried William of Orange to England in 1688, was cast away 138 years later.

But some famous ships have come to a far more degrading end than that of being broken up. Several English and foreign war vessels which have been sold to the Norwegians, are now carrying lumber from port to port.

The Marlborough, which conveyed so many British troops to India, is now moored at Gibraltar as a coal hulk; and the John Bertram, the American racing tea clipper, foundered some years ago while struggling along toward England with a cargo of petroleum.

TALE OF A TEXAS TANTALUS.

Tascosa's Town Drunkard and How He Overcame Obstacles

Every small town possesses its "character," and none can outdo Tascosa, Tex. Bob is the name of Tascosa's pride. Bob what nobody knows, and for all practical purposes Bob is sufficient. Bob is human and possesses human frailty in a pronounced degree. His especial weakness is love for ardent potations. He is not rich amad with a full sized appetite and a depleted purse dark and devious ways were necessary to secure the wherewith to allay the consuming thirst that always was his portion.

Tascos, among other fine and imposing structures, possesses a saloon owned by a German. The building is hardly strong enough to stand a heavy draught of wind and so it became Bob's source of supply. Shutters were removed and entrance effected. Several bottles of whisky were abstracted—and Bob had a glorious celebration. On several succeeding nights he made other excursions and on each occasion he filled up gloriously.

The losses were, of course, discovered, and the guilty one was finally unearthed. The German complained to the town marshal, who took Bob into custody. Tascosa has no jail and where to keep Bob over night became the question of the hour. The German, with the fabled tale of Tantalus in mind, suggested chaining him to a post, the central support of the saloon, giving him a blanket and there in the midst of plenty let him want. And accordingly so it was done.

The next morning Bob was more gloriously drunk than the most ancient resident had ever beheld him. Still chained to his post, the blanket torn in shreds, with empty bottles and broken bottles around him, he was master of the feid. Examination disclosed the fact that he had transformed his blanket into a lasso and thereby secured his booty.

The news spread and the cowamen and the rancheros came trooping in. From a mere sneak thief Bob became a hero. The German chrove. Liquor was freely dispensed and none was there too poor to "set 'em up for Bob."

It was a great day for Tascosa and since then Bob has done little but celebrate gloriously.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

DO YOU WANT GOLD?
Cripple Creek is not a health resort. It is a wealth resort. Quite a difference! Location, near Pike's Peak, in Colorado. Gold—bright, yellow gold, is found at grass roots and in the rock formation.
Reliable experts claim this is to-day the richest camp in Colorado. Assays average $100 per ton, and have run as high as $5,000. One hundred people a day are now rushing to Fremont, chief town of the district.
The chance of a life-time is worth looking after!
You can get there quickly and comfortably by taking Santa Fe Route. Only line with no change of cars from Chicago. Kansas City and other principal cities to Florissant, nearest railroad station, with daily stages, to Fremont.
